SERIAL STORY ROMANCE OF BOSTON LIFE

Jerry O'Donovan finally called Sheila Kelly by telephone to apologize for misjudging her acquaintanceship with Brad Talton. But then instead of coming to see her he dashed away to a political rally. How will this affect Sheila's feeling toward Brad? Today's chapter of "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly" sheds further light on this interesting situation.

CHAPTER 4

BRIEF as was Brad's kiss, it left Sheila's lips and cheeks burning. She wished she could have him in the train long enough to make him understand she hadn't liked it.

Sheila's standards about things like that were high. They were the standards she'd learned from her mother and her teachers. Like most girls, she had the veneer of modern sophistication, but it was only a veneer.

That was one of the reasons she had been attracted to Jerry O'Donovan. He wasn't "silly" as were so many of the boys of her own age. Jerry's emotions ran deep. He respected her, and the things she believed in.

That unexpected kiss from Brad was so fleeting that it hardly outraged anything deep in her. But it made her think less of him. It put him in a class with a certain type of young people who adventured into the dangerous region of "heavy necking," as they called it.

It was just the kind of thing she was trying to save Patsy from—light caresses, frivolous mockeries of real love. Not*

Gaeta Girl Witness Scores 'Lax' Police

BUSINESS PICKUP DUE MOTORS CHIEF SAYS

EXCLUSIVE!

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Copyright, 1938, by the Boston Evening American

For days after the Revere slaying of Louis Gaeta, racketeer, Elizabeth Ruth Dalton, girl eyewitness who says she can identify the killer, was left by authorities exposed to gangland's "silencers," she charged today.

Exclusively in the Boston Evening American yesterday, the identity of this girl eyewitness was revealed.

From her own lips the story of the sidewalk slaying was told to Evening American readers alone.

Although she has been securely guarded and secreted for some time now, the Evening American not only learned her identity, but found her, and got that story.

LEFT UNGUARDED

Today, while detectives still search for James F Preston of East Boston, alleged lieutenant of a North End racket overlord and charged in a warrant with the Gaeta slaying, brunette Betty Dalton tells of her experiences following the murder.

Betty Dalton has no racket connections and knows no racketeers. She is a traveling saleswoman who was at the slaying spot in Shirley avenue only by chance. She is possibly the most disinterested eyewitness to the killing.

Sit-Strike Turmoil in R. I. Senate

Crowds Hoot When Labor and Relief Bills Fail

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 6—Several hundred yelling, singing men and women today staged a "sit-down" strike in the State Senate galleries in protest failure of that body to pass a $700,000 relief bill.

The strike was ordered by Joseph A. Sylvia, organizer of the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, after both houses of the State Assembly failed to act on a relief program which included 23 "labor" bills.

More than 500 members of Labor's Non-Partisan League, composed of the CIO, American Federation of Labor and Independent Textile Union enrollees, had marched upon the State House earlier in the day to back the measures they favored.

The major bill they wanted, sent to the Assembly by Governor Robert E. Quinn, has passed the House Tuesday, but failed in the Senate and had ben referred to the finance committee. It was due to be brought out tomorrow.

Lieutenant-Governor Raymond E. Jordan, presiding in the Senate, entertained a motion to adjourn after a resolution of sympathy for a deceased member and two minor bills had been passed today.

"We want the relief bill passed!"

Meanwhile, a large delegation occupying the House galleries left that chamber and rushed to the Senate.

Deputy sheriffs under High Sheriff John E. Baird halted them and ousted all persons were not seated from the Senate gallery. A small group made their way to the floor and stayed there.

Hunt Navy Plane Missing With 7

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 6 (AP)—Captain Alva D. Bernhard, chief of staff of the navy aircraft scouting force, announced today a navy bombing plane with seven men aboard has been missing since yesterday.

Captain Bernhard revealed that the big patrol bomber had been missing since 5 p. m. yesterday, "when we lost radio contact with it."

Torch Death Probed by Bishop

In an attempt to pierce the veil of mystery declared to cover the torch death of Mrs. Jennie Andleman, 70, at Tewksbury last October, officials searched through a group of Tewksbury camps today.

If Mrs. Andleman's death in a fire on October 15 was a torch slaying, as a daughter charges, police are picking up a trail nearly three months cold.

Searching the Tewksbury camps today aided by a caretaker, Frank Simpson, were District-Attorney Warren L. Bishop, Lieutenant-Detective Daniel M. O'Connell, attached to the Middlesex prosecutor's office, and Police Chief Cyril L. Barker of Tewksbury.

Bishop and Lieutenant O'Connell went to Tewksbury after being closeted for some time in his office with the dead woman's daughter, Mrs Rebecca Piltch of Dana street, Cambridge, and her son, Maurice, 23 years old.

BISHOP PUSHES PROBE

The district attorney assumed personal charge of the probe after reports that there was "something peculiar" about the fire and Mrs. Andleman's death had reached his ears.

Mrs. Andleman's charred body was found in the ruins of a summer camp fire. After a probe by State police officials, her death was declared accidental.

Mrs. Piltch, daughter of the dead woman, told investigators she had made a long search for valuable jewelry belonging to her mother in various camps she owned and has been unable to find it.

FINDS JEWELRY

She said that four days before the fire she visited the camp of her mother in Tewksbury and left some groceries. She was told by neighbors her mother was in Lowell that day.

She said that after her mother's death she went back to Tewksbury and found the grocieries she had left in a camp other than where she had placed them. She also declared that on still another trip to the camps she found jewelry she had previously sought in the place.

Tobin Seeks More of Gas Tax

Boston, facing a $12,000,000 deficit this year, is entitled to more than the present $50,000 it receives from the state gasoline tax, Mayor Tobin told Governor Hurley today at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

The opportunity for the mayor to tell this direct to the governor in public came when Governor Hurley arrived as an unexpected guest at this first in a series of three Chamber luncheons in January and February.

"Now that the governor of the Commonwealth is present at this function," said Mayor Tobin, "I should like to say that the city of Boston is entitled to a greater share of the gasoline tax.

"I believe that it is necessary for the Commonwealth to step into Boston and help us solve the traffic problems by helping us to pay for them.

"The $50,000 gasoline tax revenue in the past eight years is not a just share for the city. The Commonwealth has $23,000,000 available for such problems. The city of Boston is entitled to a reasonable portion of it."

Guests at the luncheon included leaders in business, professional and

Chicago Bookie Law Illegal

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 6 (AP)—Governor Horner's office announced today that the Chicago ordinance to license race track handbooks in the opinoin of Attorney-General Otto Kerner was null and void.

The opinion, requested by the governor, held that bets on horse races could be made legally only at the race track under the Illinois law.

Newtonville Widow in Plea for $50,000 In Damages

A $50,000 breach of promise suit against Wentworth V. Lander, 70, of Lenox street, West Newton, was filed in Suffolk Superior court by Mrs. Mary Frances Avery, 45-year-old widow, of exclusive Gray Birch terrace, Newtonville.

In her suit the widow contends Lander promised to wed her, that she was willing to fulfill her part of the agreement, but he failed to keep his.

At his West Newton home Landers, retired engineer, said he could not understand what Mrs. Avery's motives were in filing the suit.

Landers is the father of four grown children. His first wife died six years ago. He was married the second time last June.

"I have known Mrs. Avery for nearly four years," Landers said.

"We had been quite friendly, but there was no promise of marriage made during our friendship.

"I cannot understand her motive in filing suit against me. In the first place, I don't know where she thinks I have an estate valued at $50,000.

"Although I have not been active in engineering circles for many years, if I were offered a job tomorrow I would take one."

Mrs. Avery is employed as a secretary, according to Landers, in the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Causeway street, Boston.

Kennedy Honor Due Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—The nomination of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the maritime commission, as ambassador to Great Britain was expected to be made today or tomorrow.

President Roosevelt, it was learned, plans to send to the Senate his nomination as successor to the late Robert Bingham. The Senate was expected to act quickly on the recommendation.

Kennedy is on his way to the Pacific coast to complete his official duties on the commission by investigating the shipping and labor problems there.

Senators Question Knudsen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—A business upturn by Spring was predicted today by William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, as he called upon the people to "have confidence in the future."

Testifying before the Senate investigation of the business recession, unemployment and relief, the automobile manufacturer also intimated that a policy statement from the administration regarding business would improve conditions considerably.

CALL ON ROOSEVELT

After his Senate appearance, Knudsen and John D. Biggers, director of the recent unemployment census, had an appointment to see President Roosevelt at the White House shortly after noon.

Replying to a question by Senator Byrnes (D.) of South Carolina, chairman, regarding what the government could do to help business, the tall, gray-haired manufacturer said:

"We are in the midst of a business recession, but business usually picks up in the spring, and I don't think this year will be an exception.

"I hope people will have a lit-

See New Liberal In Supreme Court

Capital Is Busy Speculating Over Justice Sutherland's Successor

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—A Supreme Court disposed to more liberal interpretation of the Constitution became assured today, as a result of the retirement of Justice George Sutherland, and the expectation in well informed quarters that there will be still another vacancy before long.

The New Dealers are congratulating themselves that President Roosevelt really won his fight to liberalize the court, even though defeated in his efforts to enlarge its membership.

Had not Roosevelt turned the spotlight of controversy on the court, they said, the elderly conservative justices probably would have stayed on and on.

Irrespective of the merits of that argument, Roosevelt now has another appointment to make. It is one that is going to be made with exceeding care by the President and subjected to exceeding scrutiny by the Senate before confirmation. Neither the White House nor the as was raised over Hugo L. Black as was raisie over Hugo L. Black.

FIELD NARROWS DOWN

Washington is in a speculative fever over the appointment. The President still has in his desk the long list of possibilities from whom last Summer he selected Black. This list at the time had been narrowed down to three or four, the others besides Black, being Solicitor-General Stanley Reed, Judge Sam G. Bratton of the 10th U. S. Circuit and Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana, a leader in the fight for court reform.

The name of Representative Hatton W. Sumners, Texas Democrat, was injected today by the House judiciary committee, members of which in a letter to Roosevelt unanimously urged Sumners for the vacancy. Sumners is chairman of the committee.

In view of the furore over the Black appointment and the jibes at "Senatorial courtesy," which allowed Black to be confirmed without examination of his record, it is considered doubtful if Roosevelt will go to the Senate again for a nominee. That might look too much like "packing" the bench with Senators.

If, for that or other reasons, Senator Minton is eliminated, it leaves the Solicitor-General and Judge Bratton on what was the "preferred list" last summer.

REED AID OF DEAL

Both men are known to be highly regarded by Roosevelt. Reed has borne the brunt of defending New Deal legislation before the high court. As for Bratton, Roosevelt demonstrated his esteem for him by promoting him from a Federal district court to the 10th circuit. Bratton is a former Democratic Senator from New Mexico.

Some of Roosevelt's advisers are preparing to urge him to go to the bench for his nominee, as a sort of antidote for the Black appointment, or nominate a Catholic, which might remove some of the sting of Justice Black's old affiliation with the Klan. In the latter case, Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, might be a possibility.

Geographically, the West has a claim on the vacancy that becomes automatic when Justice Sutherland steps down two weeks hence. Justice Sutherland was appointed from Utah.

MAY NAME WESTERN MAN

Justice Van Devanter, whose retirement last June paved the way for the Black appointment, was from Wyoming. The court as it will stand on January 18 has no representative from west of the Mississippi river, and the West is going to demand the appointment.

The other vacancy that Washington expects before long is that of Justice James McReynolds, most implacable of New Deal foes. It was he who cried, in anger, "The Constitution is gone," when the court by 5 to 4 upheld the administration in the famous gold clause case.

Justice McReynolds, who will be 76 next month, is now left alone on the bench with Justice Pierce Butler as the only other wholehearted conservative. It is thought he will not be very happy in the new line-up.

Roosevelt in Courteous Note to Retiring Justice

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—In a brief and courteous letter, President Roosevelt today acknowledged the retirement of Justice Sutherland from the Supreme Court.

"I have received your letter telling me of your proposed retirement from regular active service on the bench, this retirement to be effective on and after January 18,1938," the President wrote.

"May I send you my felicitations on your many years of public service?

"May I also express the sincere hope of Mrs. Roosevelt and myself that we shall have the pleasure of seeing you and Mrs. Sutherland at the (Supreme Court) dinner at the White House on January 20?"

Blizzard Imperils Soviet Polar Camp

TROMSOE, Norway, Jan. 6 (AP)—The Russian Arctic weather campers reported today that a blizzard had driven their ice floe rapidly due south to 79 degrees north latitude. This meant a drift of a full degree (about 69 miles) since Saturday. Experts feared the floe might be swept into the open sea, where it would break up before a rescue ship could reach it.

Plans Bill to Attract Merchant Sailors

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Representative O'Toole (D.), New York, said today he would introduce legislation designed to "strengthen discipline in the American merchant marine." The New Yorker said he would ask Congress to authorize a bonus of $10 to $15 a month to former navy men who join the crew of an American merchant vessel.

Defense Photo Ban Sent to Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—A bill restricting photographing of fortifications was passed by the Senate today and sent to the White House for the President's signature. The House previously had approved it. Sponsored by the War Department, the bill carries provisions for deportation of aliens found guilty of violating regulations.

Announcement

The price of the Boston Evening American is now three cents.

Our loyal friends evidently think so, too, because:

MORE people buy and read the Boston Evening American than any other evening newspaper in New England.

New costs have come to the production of a great newspaper.

Newsprint paper went up $1.50 a ton in 1937, and the manufacturers have announced an increase of $7.50 a ton for 1938. The Boston Evening American uses in excess of twenty-five thousand tons of paper annually.

Social insurance, wages, metals, inks, mechanical equipment—the costs of all materials that enter into the production of a newspaper have soared.

Two courses were open.

The Boston Evening American could have reduced its size and its quality, could have reduced its personnel—at a consequent loss to its readers and to its employees.

The other course was to build a bigger and stronger newspaper and MAINTAIN EMPLOYMENT—and this is the course the Boston Evening American has chosen to adopt.

The Boston Evening American cordially and sincerely appreciates the loyal support of the people of New England — and intends to DESERVE its continuance.

New Tax Scheme Devised to Hit Big Business

Vinson Group's Plan To Affect 500-1000 Corporations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—The House Ways and Means tax subcommittee today bared a new corporation tax scheme, striking at 500 to 1000 big corporations in the country which are closely held.

The new proposal is, in effect, the same undistributed profits tax as is contained in present law, said Chairman Vinson (D.) Kentucky, of the sub-committee.

Maximum tax rates reaching approximately 32.5 per cent would be levied on this class of corporation, such as the Ford Motor Co., depending upon the amount of dividends paid.

ADOPT 2 CLASSES

The sub-committee prevously had adopted two classes of corporation tax rates designed to give relief from the present undistributed profits tax.

In the first class—corporations earning less than $25,000 a year—the undistributed profis tax is repealed, a tax of 12½ per cent is levied on the first $5000 income; 14 per cent on the next $15,000, and [illegible] per cent on the next $5000.

In the second class—corporations earning over $25,000 a year—the tax ranges from 16 to 20 per cent, depending on the amount of profit distributed.

THIRD CLASS

But in the third group, for which rates were disclosed today, an entirely new system is provided.

"This third group of corporations," said Chairman Vinson, "is believed, under the standards we specify, to be using a corporate device for the expressed purpose of avoiding taxes. It is to prevent the individual owner from escaping payment of the surtax on dividends that the new plan was adopted."

Anti-Lynch Bill Delayed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Southern Senators, banded together for a prolonged fight against the anti-lynching bill, gave immediate evidence of delay tactics today as Senate debate on the bill got under way.

They were hopeful that the bill would be shelved to make way for President Roosevelt's legislative program.

During the first half hour of Senate consideration, the entire bill was read and a quorum call demanded by Senator McKellar (D.) of Tennessee, although there had been one 15 minutes earlier.

Before the debate started Senator Connally (D.) of Texas, leader of the opposition, issued a statement asserting the bill was an attempt to "deliberately" mislead the public.

Relisting of State Voters Asked in '39

Re-registration of Massachusetts voters is recommended in a report filed today with the Legislature by the special recess commission appointed by the last legislature to study election subjects.

The commission recommends that the re-registration take place in the calendar year of 1939 and that voting, under the new lists, begin after January 1, 1940. It also recommends a bill providing an identification system for voters.

2 U. S. Men Check Czech Shoe Costs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—Testimony of Sidney Morgan, tariff commission secretary, in House Appropriations sub-committee hearings made public today, disclosed that the commission has dispatched two investigators to Czechoslovakia to probe shoe manufacturing costs there.

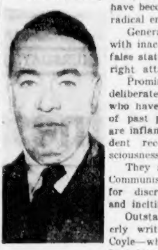
Lowell Firm Gets Big Navy Contract

LOWELL, Jan. 6 (AP). The U. S. Bunting Company today announced it had been awarded a contract by the Navy Department for the manufacture of 150,000 yards of flannel. It added the contract would provide work for all regular employes of the mill until September 1.

Gen. Johnson Says:

New Dealers Use 'Red Bible' Texts

By HUGH S. JOHNSON



HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6—There are certain books that have become regular texts or bibles of the radical end of the Third New Deal.

Generally speaking, I find them filled with inaccurate and, frequently, flagrantly false statements. Invariably they are outright attacks on the capitalist system.

Prominent among their methods is a deliberate attempt to discredit individuals who have some public standing by reason of past public service. Throughout they are inflamatory appeals to what the President recently condemned as class-consciousness.

They are in all things consistent with Communist manuals on approved methods for discrediting bourgeoisie government and inciting to proletariat revolution.

Outstanding among these are the cleverly written books of David Cushman Coyle—who appears from his writings to be a bitter and disappointed misanthrope. One recently pushed into public notice by the Jackson and Ickes speeches is a 500-page diatribe by Ferdinand Lundberg on the now famous but mythical 60 families.

The usual reaction of the people and institutions attacked is to say:

"Why bother about such false and extreme nonsense? It carries its own condemnation on its face."

"These people are only seeking publicity for the purpose of their business. Why give it to them by noticing their stuff?"

* * *

That may be right, but this is the source-material for nearly all the speeches and tons of the propaganda of the Third New Deal. Not through these books, but through the translation of what is in them into all kinds of important utterances from the top down, this political and economic filth is permeating our intellectual earth like the seepage from a broken sewer.

For that reason these publications deserve careful and systematic checking and answering. No commentator with two deadlines a day could possibly do that or do more than to pick up the fragments of falsity in his personal knowledge.

Some writer with more leisure ought to attend to this and if it causes debate and publicity, it will be good for both sides of the argument, but far better for the truth.

* * *

Here is a sample from "America's 60 Families," proof of the falsity of which might be an interesting bit of political history. Referring to the fourth ballot nomination of Roosevelt in the 1932 Chicago Convention, this is said:

"Alfred E. Smith, in concert with John J. Rascob, Bernard M. Baruch and Hugh, S. Johnson, tried to procure the nomination for Newton D. Baker . . . but the Smith-duPont-Morgan forces were unsuccessful."

This is made out of whole-cloth. Yet, it was repeated today in different words by the most radical of the Third New Deal commentators.

Mr. Baruch was not for any pre-convention candidate. He had had his fingers burned in the Smith-McAdoo embroglio. I didn't count. But we were both opposed to Mr. Baker's nomination.

Social Security Claims Seen 1000 Daily

10 Million New Files Expected This Year For Employes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The Social Security Board has estimated for Congress that the number of claims filed for old-age and death-benefit payments would increase from an average of 650 a day on last November 30, to 1000 a day at the end of this year.

In submitting data for use of a House appropriations subcommittee in drafting the independent offices supply bill, made public today, the board reported that, through November 30, it had set up 36,000,000 employe records, and expected to add 10,000,000 more in the next fiscal year.

A request for $214,000,000 for grants to states for old age assistance was based on an expectation, the board said, that 21 per cent of the estimated 8,180,000 people 65 years old or over will receive benefits in the fiscal year starting July 1. Last October 19.6 per cent were getting assistance.

The board, which pays administration costs for state unemployment compensation programs, asserted of the 1939 program:

"Altogether, it is estimated that almost 54 million benefit payments will be made to approximately 5,000,000 benefit recipients for an amount in excess of $480,000,000."

TVA, CCC Slash In Economy Drive

House Appropriation Group Cuts Budget Estimates 118 Millions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The House Appropriations committee began an economy drive today by recommending appropriation of $1,414,818,515 to finance more than 30 independent governmental agencies for the coming fiscal year—a saving of $118,538,800 over the current year.

The measure, first of the regular annual supply bills, slashed $3,732,000 of the Budget Bureau's estimates, most of the cut being borne by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Otherwise the bulk of the saving over the year's expenditures resulted from a $123,669,000 cut in funds for the Civilian Conservation Corps and reductions of $37,914,500 for the Veterans' Administration, and $23,845,077 for the Railroad Retirement Board.

Increases of $70,559,322 for the Social Security Board; $1,036,500 for the Interstate Commerce Commission; $1,852,000 for the Civil Service Retirement Fund and $385,000 for the National Labor Relations Board offset the economies.

In reporting the bill to the House, the committee included a sharply worded criticism of government publicity expenditures, the primary purpose of which, it said, "is to build up a public demand for the services of the agency issuing the publicity."

The drastic cut in the CCC funds conformed directly to the budget bureau's recommendations, and would give the CCC $226,321,000 for the next fiscal year, in contrast to the $350,000,000 in the current year.

The committee said the slash would mean elimination of 412 CCC camps and reduction of enrollees from 315,000 to 250,000. Final decision has not been made, the report said, as to which camps will be abandoned.

An outlay of $92,000,000 for the Veterans' Administration won committee approval. It includes $4,500,000 for construction of additional hospital facilities but no specific projects were listed.

The measure carries a direct appropriation of $200,000 and a contract authorization of $340,000 for construction of a new wind tunnel for the Government's aviation laboratory at Langley Field, Va. The committee said this device was essential to solution of problems in design and construction of the larger airplanes now projected, particularly those for use in trans-oceanic service.

Roosevelt Plans Biggest U. S. Navy of Peacetime

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—President Roosevelt, in the face of threatening international disturbances in the Far East and Europe, today prepared to call upon Congress for a naval rearmament program of staggering proportions—by far the largest in peacetime history.

The plan for strengthening to a formidable degree the first line of the nation's defense, although official details are yet withheld, envisages, International News is able to disclose, the following:

1—Denunciation, in effect, of the London and Washington naval treaties to which the United States has until now faithfully adhered while Britain, Japan and other nations went on building up their fleets. The treaties expired December 31, 1936.

2—Building the American fleet far beyond the previous treaty strength under a new five-year program of rapid expansion which will replace the Vinson-Trammell act.

3—Creation of an Atlantic fleet as well as the present main fleet, which for several years has been based on the Pacific coast against the Japanese threat.

4—Construction immediately of a total of five new 35,000-ton battleships, two aircraft carriers and a number of ultra-fast light cruisers.

The new program, while it is not designed to keep pace with Britain, will maintain a definite superiority over Japan, navy officials said.

Girl Not Guarded From Gaeta Foes

And that night—a night of terror—someone tried to force a way into her room and she put a pillow dummy in the bed and hid in the closet with a flatiron.

In yesterday's story, this 28-year-old saleswoman, who once did a single in vaudeville, ended her exclusive story to the Evening American by describing the arrival of police in a prowl car immediately after the slaying:

"If that car had started right then after the car of the killer, I believe they would have caught it," she concluded.

Today she resumes her story and reveals that the officers in the car were Lieutenant Harry Tracy and Inspector William Gibson, composing the Revere police vice squad.

"They were there within a minute or two from the time that I actually made the telephone call to police telling of the murder," said Miss Dalton. "There is no reason why they could not have caught the fleeing car.

"I know that the radio alarm was out, because I heard it myself COMING OVER THE RADIO IN THE POLICE CAR WHEN IT ARRIVED.

"GET IN BACK SEAT"

"I was told to get in the back seat of the prowl car. Then I was left alone as the police maneuvered around. When I think of it, anyone could have shot me.

"Then they put Gaeta in an ambulance and drove me to Revere police headquarters.

"They asked me questions. They showed me pictures of one suspect BUT GAVE ME THE IMPRESSION THEY THOUGHT IT WAS ANOTHER.

"I said I did not believe one of the suspects whose pictures I had seen was the man. Then one of those mentioned came in voluntarily. He was released.

"Then one of the men—whom I had told police was nearby the scene—came in and verified the fact that he was on the sidewalk and saw the killer, but he said it was nobody he knew.

GOT ONE REAL FRIGHT

"I was in that radio room until 1 o'clock the next morning and I got one real fright. It was dark around 7 o'clock.

"Suddenly, while I was alone, I saw two faces peering in the window. I leaped from my seat and grabbed the curtain, which pulled up, and shouted, 'Get out of there!'

"It happened to be only two curious youngsters, but the point was that I was left exposed there and anyone might have got up to that window.

"When it was time for me to go, they again wanted to avoid reporters and photographers. I had to step from a window onto a radiator, onto a cross-bar—with three feet between them—into the women's cells. Then they told me to get down on the floor of an automobile and they covered me with a blanket.

JUMPED FROM BED

"They took me to my apartment in Boston. After I got there—maybe it was just a coincidence—but at about 3 o'clock in the morning somebody tried twice to force open the door, apparently by throwing his shoulder against it.

"I jumped from bed, stuffing a pillow under the blankets, grabbed a flatiron and slipped into the closet.

"On the next Saturday—which was November 27, four days after the killing—I had a date with my boy friend, who comes from out of state, to attend a social function with him in his home city. I was in an evening gown.

"Chief Tighe called me and told me they expected to bring in a suspect in about an hour and he wanted me to identify the suspect. I want to Revere at 8 o'clock and waited until midnight and my whole evening was spoiled, as they never brought in any witness at all.

"Sunday I passed with my boy friend until midnight. While we were in my apartment, we heard a man in the hallway say his name was one thing and another man call him another name. The first man was angry and snarled, 'You —— fool, what are you calling me that for?' They were right outside the door.

"CONTACT SHEEHAN"

"Then my boy friend said, 'Why don't you get in touch with Captain Sheehan (Captain James T. Sheehan, Boston police racket buster who was sent into Revere) because he's been put in charge of the case?'

"You know, I can't help a queer feeling that the Revere police didn't care what happened to me. The next day I called up Captain Sheehan. He has treated me like a real gentleman treats a woman. He is a fine, decent man.

"I cannot speak too highly of the treatment given me by Captain Stokes (Captain John F. Stokes, chief of state detectives) and Lieutenant Ferrari (Lieutenant Joseph L. Ferrari) of the state police.

"Miss Lotta Caldwell, state policewoman, has been wonderful. And I want to say a kind word for Captain Mahoney (Captain James P. Mahoney) of the state troopers. But as for some of those others—I can say nothing, only the worst!

"I told the same story to Captain Sheehan that I told the Revere police. I've told it to your Assistant District Attorney Garret Byrne. I've told it to the attorney general's office and others.

"I've never changed it, because I have nothing to hide and no axe to grind. It was just my destiny to be at that spot in Shirley avenue, Revere, when a murder was committed.

"Captain Sheehan ordered that I be moved to another apartment while awaiting action in the case. Police helped me move my things. Later I thought I saw one of the suspects on Tremont street and that he saw and recognized me.

"I told Captain Sheehan and he had me walk by the place and, if I saw the man again, I was to place my hand over my heart while they covered me from a police car. But that time I didn't see anybody.

"Then the attorney general's office took charge and I stared at blank walls for 12 days without going out.

"So here I am!

"And I went to Revere last November to play beano."

Port of Seattle Closed

SEATTLE, Jan. 6 (AP)—Seattle's port was closed today by a deadlock between shipowners and longshoremen over how cargo should be handled. Ship were diverted to other Puget Sound ports.

Boston Evening American Photo

Mrs. Eleanor Goguen of 78 Central avenue, Lynn, claims she is the youngest great-grandmother in the United States. This mother of 13 children, who boasts 26 grand-children, 24 of whom are living, is making clothes for Beverly Dundren, her great-granddaughter of Berlin, N. H. Mrs. Goguen's husband is in Canada, being unable to enter the country.

Thebaud Saved By Crew After Grounding

Pumps Keep Ben Pine Race Fishing Boat From Sinking

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 6—The internationally famous racing fisherman Gertrude L. Thebaud grounded near her dock early today and sprang a leak which for a time threatened to sink her.

Hard work at the pumps finally controlled the rush of water into the damaged hull, and Captain Ben Pine, her owner, said the schooner would be hauled out on the high tide for repairs.

WAS BEING MOVED

The Thebaud hit bottom when she was moved a short distance from the pier to give another fishing vessel room to get away.

Captain Pine said the grounding had apparently knocked several "stopwaters" out of the Thebaud's keel, but that the schooner would resume fishing as soon as they were replaced.

Built in 1930 at a cost of $73,000, Thebaud's exploits included winning an international championship of racing fishing schooners, good-will excursions to Washington and the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition and a scientific expedition to the Arctic Circle.

CAPTAIN PINE'S SHIP

Thebaud is owned by the noted Captain Pine, often a contender in fishing schooner races that thrilled the New England cost.

Winner of a cup donated by the late Sir Thomas Lipton in 1930, after triumphing over the champion Bluenose off Gloucester, Thebaud lost to Bluenose in the Halifax race the following year for the International Fisherman's Cup.

Loss of Children In Fire Crushes Heroic Father

No. Weymouth Man Fails to Reach 2 Daughters

As dawn lighted North Weymouth today a grief-wracked man paced back and forth in Bridge street, a scene of horror etched in his mind.

Almost within his sight—and just beyond his reach—flames and smoke had seared the lungs of his two young daughters, with whom he had romped only a short time before, snuffing out their lives.

Francis O'Rourke had stayed home to mind the children while his wife visited friends. A stove on the second floor became overheated. O'Rourke threw a rug over it to smother the flames. There was an explosion—and in a flash the place became an inferno.

Betty O'Rourke, 10, who had been sitting with her father on the first floor, got to the street easily. But two children sleeping on the third floor—Elaine, 5, and Barbara, 4—were cut off.

O'Rourke rushed for the stairway. A sheet of flame drove him back. He dashed downstairs and told Betty to call the fire department.

Again the father went back to the wall of flame that kept him from his younger daughters. But it was impossible to get through.

The children, meanwhile, got out of bed and went to the head of the stairs. They could go no further. Firemen, entering through a window, found them, unconscious.

BREATHED FLAME

The fire apparently had singed them only slightly. But a physician found they had breathed the flame and smoke and were beyond resuscitation.

Mrs. O'Rourke's brother, Edward Birchmore, visiting O'Rourke, escaped without injury. The nine-room house was destroyed.

Flees Hospital In Nightgown

Clad only in a knee-length hospital nightgown, a 22-year-old injured patient, committeed by police, mysteriously vanished from a sixth floor ward at City Hospital today.

Search of the hospital and neighborhood disclosed no trace of the shoeless, scantily clad man, who is suffering from a brain concussion and lacerated scalp and alcoholism.

He had been arrested by Back Bay police while lying on the lawn at St. Anne's Church, Gainsborough and St. Stephen streets.

Stork Brings 12th To 'Derby' Mother

TORONTO, Jan. 6—Mrs. John Nagle, contender for Charles Vance Millar's $500,000 "stork derby" bequest, today had given birth to her 12th child—a girl.

"I would have liked twins," she said.

Mrs. Nagle, 35, and married 18 years, claims nine children eligible for the money left by Millar.

TOKYO, Jan. 6 (AP)—Three hundred fishermen caught 500 of 2000 ten to 15-foot whales, worth $100 each, which swam into the mouth of the Tone River near Tokyo today.

Windsors After Home in West

He, Wally May Live On California Estate

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6 (AP)—The San Francisco Examiner said today agents of the Duke of Windsor have been negotiating to lease the 50-acre San Francisco Peninsula estate of Leon F. Douglass, noted inventor.

Unless long and carefully guarded negotiations collapse, said the paper, the former British king will bring his American-born duchess to California to live when the couple visits America.

The Douglass estate, with its mansion and gardens, is a show place near Menlo Park, a few miles south of San Francisco.

Members of the Douglass family said they understood negotiations were under way, but they knew of no details.

Probe Hollywood Mystery Death

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6 (INS)—Police sought today to unravel the mystery of the death of Harry A. Raynes, 57, prominent artist, who was found dead in his apartment here.

They said his bedroom, in which he was found, was spattered with blood and the apartment bore evidences of a terrible struggle.

Woes Increase For Abandoned Tiny Carol

The woes of tiny Miss "Christmas Carol" were increased today.

Left in a hallway on Christmas Eve, claimed by a woman who later admitted to the Boston Evening American she was not the mother of the child, Carol found herself whisked to Massachusetts General Hospital for another peck of trouble.

An eye irritation took a turn for the worse today, with the result that physicians at City Hospital rushed her to the Eye and Ear Infirmary of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Olive Louise Gatten, supervisor of of the children's ward at City Hospital, reported that "Carol" had lost none of her "gumption."

Miss Gatten said:

"The child has wonderful stamina. But half of her troubles are caused by her mama's absence."

Authorities said that as soon as Miss "Carol" shows improvement she will be sent to an orphanage.

Twin Brothers, One Born Dead, Gain

BROCKTON, Jan. 6—Twin baby brothers today were in excellent health despite the fact that one of them was born dead and began to breathe only after a 30-minute battle by firemen and a doctor.

The infant, now as healthy as his mate, is Robert Dodd, son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Dodd, Highland street. The other brother is Richard.

Dr. John Pettey found that Robert was born dead while officiating at the multiple birth at Eaton Hospital.

Adrenalin was injected into dead infant's heart muscle after which he was plunged into hot water while the doctor administered mouth-to-mouth breathing until firemen arrived with an inhalator.

The physician had started the breath of life and after 30 more minutes of inhalator treatment the baby's life was assured. Both infants have maintained steady gain since birth.

Aid Mannish Girl In Murder Fight

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 6 (AP)—A radio policeman and his wife, both under a doctor's care for nervous collapse, sent word from their barred home today that they would "go to the limit" to aid their madcap, tomboy daughter, held with a girl chum for the slaying of a bus driver in a $2.10 "thrill" holdup.

The grand jury will meet tomorrow, and Prosecutor William A. Wachenfeld said he hoped to go to trial within two weeks against mannish Mrs. Ethel Sohl, 20-year-old daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. Frank Strouse, and 17-year-old Genevieve Owens.

Wachenfeld's staff announced the last link in the investigation was completed when detectives found a .22 calibre sawed-off rifle allegedly used to slay William Barhorst on the night of Dec. 21 at the wheel of his bus.

Schaffer said he found the rusty weapon in a coal bin at the poverty-stricken Owens' home, where Mrs. Sohl had been living since quarreling with her parents.

Wachenfeld refused to permit Barhorst's widow to carry out an expressed desire to confront the girls in the Essex county jail "to see for myself what kind of girls could do such a thing."

Mother Grieves For Girl Killer

The doings of a wayward daughter cause this mother, Mrs. Edward L. Owens of Newark, N. J., to grieve. Her heart breaks as her 3-year-old son whispers, "Mother, don't cry." Genevieve Owens, her daughter, is held for killing a bus driver in a holdup police say was executed by the Owens girl and Mrs. Ethel Sohl.

Tobin Raps MDC Plans for New Sewer Line

Mayor Whets Axe for Expense, Names 3 to Probe Projects

Mayor Maurice J. Tobin stripped down to fighting togs today and declared war upon the Metropolitan district commission and other organizations with the power to spend money that affects the Boston tax rate.

The new mayor, particularly, appointed a committee of three to study Metropolitan district commission legislation calling for a new sewer project to pass through Boston.

If this project goes through, the mayor asserted, the cost to the city will be $1,582,000.

SAYS QUABBIN NOT NEEDED

Mayor Tobin said his "watchdog committee" for the sewer project would be made up of Corporation Counsel Henry Parkman, Jr., City Auditor Charles J. Fox and George Dakin, division engineer of the sewer division, Department of Public Works.

"If this policy had been followed in 1923," declared the mayor, "Boston would have been saved $45,000,000 which it will eventually cost us for the Quabbin project.

"In 1906, this city consumed 87,000,000 gallons of water. Thirty-one years later, in 1937, our water consumption was 87,000,000 gallons. So we have no need for additional water.

"We don't need Quabbin at all, yet Boston taxpayers are to defray 66 per cent of the cost of the Quabbin project to supply water for suburban communities.

NO "PROXY MAYORS"

"The committee I appointed today will investigate other pieces of legislation filed by the Metropolitan District Commission. Other committees will be appointed to watch other state departments."

Tobin scoffed at a morning paper story that he would call in business men to run the city for him.

political life, as well as a number of Boston newspaper editors.

They heard the young, new mayor of Boston ask for co-operation in his administration from the Chamber of Commerce, the Real Estate Exchange and other civic bodies, in attempting to solve the city's financial problem.

"Whatever the solution, action by the Legislature is necessary," he said, "and to obtain it the efforts of all of us must be centered on some particular policy.

"If the mayor advocates one measure and the Chamber advocates another, and the Real Estate Exchange another, there will be nothing accomplished.

"It is my hope that within the next few weeks, by means of conferences with the representatives of the various civic bodies I have enumerated, and others, to select some measure that will merit the united support of the important elements in the community who are vitally interested in the progress of the city.

"To obtain this unity, some sacrifice and compromise is necessary. No measure can be advanced which will not bear more heavily or be more distasteful to some sections of the community than on others.

"If the state is now reasonably well supplied with hard roads for the convenience of motorists, which in my opinion it is, there is no object in continuing to expand vast sums in constructing new roads when a substantial reduction in the tax rate of cities and towns can be obtained by turning that money over to them for that purpose."

BUSINESS MEN ATTEND

Prominent business men and executives present were:

John S. Bridges, 3d, president, First National Bank of Boston; Albert M. Chandler, chairman, highway safety committee; James P. Murphy, managing editor, Boston Daily Record; Maxwell B. Grossman, commissioner, Boston Port Authority; George L. Anderson chairman, committee on transportation; Henry T. Claus, editor, Boston Evening Transcript; Glenwood J. Sherrard, chairman, committee on conventions; president, the Parker House, Bellevue and Somerset hotels.

James W. Reardon, associate editor, Boston Sunday Advertiser; J. Sidney Stone, chairman, committee on state taxation and expenditures; P. A. O'Connell, vice-president Boston Chamber of Commerce; Hon. Frederick W. Mansfield, former mayor of Boston; Hon. Eliot Wadsworth, president Boston Chamber of Commerce; Hon. Andrew J. Peters, former mayor of Boston.

Albert T. Gould, chairman, Maritime Association; Philip Nichols, chairman, committee on federal taxation and expenditures; Lawrence L. Winship, managing editor, Boston Globe; Frank M. Simmons, managing editor, Boston News Bureau; J. Roscoe Drummond, executive editor, Christian Science Monitor; March G. Bennett, chairman, committee on highways and rapid transit; Frederick W. Bliss, chairman, committee on industrial relations; W. Clarke Atwater, chairman, committee on aviation; Oscar T. Haussermann, chairman, committee on meetings and members luncheons.

Knudsen Sees Business Revival Due in Spring

tle more confidence in the future than they have now.

"We need a little reassurance in order to let them feel this is going to be a normal year."

3 NEW MOTORS PLANTS

Despite a lay-off of 30,000 men and a 24-hour work week for 205,000 others, Knudsen said General Motors is going ahead with expansion projects.

"Are you going to equip two new plants?" asked Byrnes.

"Not two—five," said Knudsen.

Asked by Byrnes why sales of General Motors had slumped, Knudsen replied:

"The average man feels work is slack, and he won't commit himself. Even if he needs a new car, he is holding on to his old one."

Many senators not members of the unemployment committee joined the throng in the hearing room. Senators Vandenberg (R.) and Brown (D.) of Michigan were early on the scene.

CITES COST JUMPS

Outlining the general reasons for the sharp curtailment of production in General Motors' plants, Knudsen said:

"Costs have increased sharply during 1937. Labor rates are 25 per cent higher than in 1936, and material costs rose sharply during the first half of 1937."

Asserting that the over-all increase in production in 1937 was 12½ per cent, Knudsen said:

"General Motors elected to carry this burden without increasing prices, until the period of August to October, 1937, when price increases of 8½ per cent were put in force on all cars.

STRIKES INJURIOUS

"Shop efficiency suffered in the first half of 1937 to a considerable extent through strikes and unauthorized stoppage, the actual man-hour loss being about forty million.

"The loss in manufacturing efficiency has, however, shown considerable improvement since the new models were announced, and both quality and costs are at the present time up to expectation, and can be expected to remain in that position, since strikes have stopped and labor relations are much improved.

"Wage rates are at an all time high, and despite time lost in strikes, the average annual wage in 1937 was about $1650 for the 80 per cent of the men who worked full time."

SHARPEST REDUCTION

General Motors never had a sharper reduction in production than in the last quarter of 1937, Knudsen said, detailing:

"October and November retail deliveries in the United States were 225,109 new General Motors cars, against 199,630 in 1936, and 379,657 used cars against 357,124 in 1936. During the last 10-day period in November, however, a severe drop in sales of both new and used cars took place. In fact, the total dropped 70 per cent of 1936.

"We still hoped that this would be the low point, and expected to keep the men working, on shortened hours but when the second period in December showed a drop to 45 per cent of 1936, it became necessary to adjust the working force, which was done by retaining all the men we could take care of on a 24-hour (per week) basis, and laying off the balance.

CITES HUDSON EXPANSION

"Hudson Motors reported it is increasing its force and evidently does not agree with the view there is no market for cars," Byrnes observed.

Knudsen merely smiled and made no reply.

Developing that General Motors' surplus in 1937 was $153,547,000, an increase of $54,000,000 over 1936, Byrnes asked whether the company drew upon surplus to keep men at work.

"When men are to be laid off or retained, it never enters my head where the money is coming from," replied Knudsen.

Byrnes asked whether General Motors had considered drawing on its holding of $211,000,000 in cash and government securities rather than cut off workers. He said the sum would have kept the entire force working for six months.

NET EARNINGS $4.48

"I'd rather write an answer to that when I have time to think it over," Knudsen responded.

"I always want to keep the men working, but constant employment never can be assured unless there is work to do."

He said the only thing the company could do when work declined was to spread the work.

He said General Motors' tax bill increased $5,000,000 in 1937 to $7[illegible]140,000, exclusive of the automobile excise tax.

Net earnings per share on General Motors common stock in 1937 was given by Knudsen as $4.48. In 1936 earnings were $5.[illegible]

Legislation to rid highways of unsafe automobiles was suggested by Knudsen to help clear up the glut of used cars which depress the automobile market.

EFFECT OF LAY-OFF

Senator Clark (D.) of Missouri told Knudsen:

"Nothing could have more effect on the feeling of the country than to see the biggest corporations have so little confidence in the future that it lays off 30,000 men."

Knudsen replied:

"The only way we can say whether business is good or bad is whether we sell more, or fewer cars."

Senator Lodge (R.) of Massachusetts, inquired:

"Doesn't the attitude of the government have profound effect on any psychology of fear?" government do?" asked Byrnes.

"Then what would you have the government do? asked Byrnes.

There was a long pause. Knudsen drank a glass of water. Chuckles spread through the committee room. Finally Knudsen replied he did not know.

Revere's Beano Rackets Probed

Investigation into Revere beano rackets in which operators are alleged to reap huge profits under the cloak of charity was under way by Assistant District Attorney Garret H. Byrnes today.

Scores of witnesses, including officials of several veteran and fraternal organizations in Revere, were questioned in Metropolitan District Commission police headquarters.

Byrne said the investigation would continue for several days.

It was learned investigators have uncovered information that several promoters who control the beano games have been turning over small sums to charitable organizations.

Under the law charity is supposed to receive the entire proceeds after expenses are deducted.

Tobin May Name Fearing White Fund Head

Boston Banker Is Seen As Appointee to $20,000 Post

To one of Boston's most prominent and wealthiest citizens may go the $20,000 post as manager of the George Robert White Fund, it was rumored today at City Hall.

The City Hall report was that Mayor Tobin would "invite" Fearing to become manager of the White Fund, a post which was abolished in May, 1934, by former Mayor Mansfield, who turned over handling of the fund properties to the city building department.

General Edward L. Logan, the South Boston judge, was the last salaried White Fund manager.

Two other appointments will be made shortly by the mayor, the Boston Evening American learned today, although the principals involved, John J. Spencer and James J. McCarthy, both denied receiving any official information that they would join the Tobin "cabinet."

Spencer, 29, Boston newspaperman, a graduate of Boston College and a brother-in-law of Mayor Tobin's brother, James Tobin, will be named City Censor to succeed Herbert L. McNary, of Dorchester. The post carries a $3500 salary.

McCarthy will be named City Treasurer to succeed John H. Dorsey of Dorchester. The salary for this position is $9580 annually.

Home-Made Racing Car May Cost Life

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 6—George Maslin, 29, was near death today after firemen had extricated him, with aid of an acetylene torch, from a home-made midget racing car he had crashed against a tree.

Hospital doctors said he suffered three fractures of the leg, loss of blood and a serious shock.

Plan Huge Plane Fleet in Hawaii

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 6—To make the airforce at Hawaii the strongest in history, the U. S. Navy will fly 42 patrol and bombing planes there from San Diego this year.

Officials here said transfer of the new fighting ships will be started within two weeks in the Navy's greatest long distance mass flight.

NLRB Opens Inquiry Of Cleaning Firm Case

The National Labor Relations Board today opened its inquiry into the business of the North Shore Cleaners & Dyers Co., formerly of Revere, by listening to lengthy testimony from the president of the company, Samuel A. Rosenfield, as to its financial standing.

In the NLRB offices in the Old South Building were packed scores of ex-employes of the company, and many spectators. Presiding was Trial Master Waldo C. Holden, who came from Washington for the hearing.

The complaint against the company charges that on October 27 its place of business was removed from Revere to another state, and that the employes were locked out to avoid contractual obligations with the local cleansers and dyers union of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, to avoid bargaining with the union, and to avoid employing union workers.

It also charged the company discharged two men for union activities.

Rosenfield testified the company was run by four directors, and that it does a business of $300,000 a year. He said the concern also owns the Holland Cleansers & Dyers of New Hampshire, that does a business of $100,000 a year, and the Holland company of Rhode Island, that does $30,000.

Meins Remiss, Dever Says

Carroll L. Meins, president of the Republican City Committee of Boston, was remiss in his duty in failing to give evidence of fraudulent voting in Boston last year, Attorney-General Paul A. Dever charged today in commenting on Meins' statement in Worcester yesterday.

Meins denounced Dever and District Attorney William J. Foley for "their failure to co-operate with the Republican state committee in its efforts to purge the voting lists" and added that enough fraudulent votes were cast to defeat John W. Haigis, Republican candidate for governor.

"In connection with newspaper reports concerning the remarks of Mr. Meins relative to illegal registration, it might be well to call his attention to the fact that a recess commission on registration has held extended hearings all summer at the State House," Dever said.

"If he had any evidence of fraudulent registration he was remiss in his civic duty in his failure to appear."

Kelly in Move To Audit 'L'

Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly said today he would file with the legislature a bill requiring the books and records of the Boston Elevated Railway to be opened to the public, and calling for an annual audit by the state auditor.

"The public that pays the deficit has a right to know how the income of the Elevated is spent," Kelly declared.

"It is my firm conviction that thereby much of the evermounting questionable deficits will be reduced."

Kelly praised Governor Hurley's message to the legislature recommending the purchase of the Elevated's common stock, but said further action would be necessary to reduce the deficits.

Legislature Has 5-Min. Session

The Massachusetts Legislature today held one of the briefest sessions in the history of that august body. It lasted five minutes.

One order was passed in the House and no business was transacted in the Senate before both houses adjourned until Monday afternoon.

The House passed an order for a special election March 1 in the Bristol County Eighth District to fill vacancies caused by the recent deaths of Representatives Chester W. Chase and John Halliwell.

In the Senate, adjournment was voted on motion of Senator Sybil Holmes of Brookline, immediately after a prayer offered by the Rev. Arthur D. Ellis, Senate chaplain.

Phone Pioneer Dies

LOWELL, Jan 6 (AP)—Charles H. Moevoy, 71, a pioneer in the manufacture of telephone cord, died at his home today.

Dog Bet Petition Names Are OK'd

The State ballot law commission ruled today that none of the original 10 signatures on the initiative petition calling for repeal of the law authorizing pari-mutuel betting on dog races in Massachusetts were obtained through fraud.

This was the first victory for Dr. Edwin W. Hadley, president of the New England Anti-Gambling Association in his fight to eliminate betting on dog races in this state.

The commission ruled that none of the ten original signers of the petition were "induced to sign" through "fraud."

Atty. Timothy F. Callahan who represeted the dog track interests and is contesting the petition has stated, before the commission, that he can prove that 10,000 of the 28,000 signatures on the petition are forgeries.

Long Files Bill For Tax on Gifts

State Commissioner of Taxation Henry F. Long today filed bills in the House of Representatives to increase state revenues. The first would impose an excise tax of 1½ per cent on the income of companies engaged in the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages, while the second would levy on gifts from one member of a family to another, ranging from 1 per cent on $10,000 to 8 per cent on $1,000,000 gifts.

Under the terms of the second bill the tax would be 5 per cent on $10,000 and 12 per cent on $1,000,000 on gifts to non-related persons.

Plight of Jews in Europe

Coolidge's Views Cited for Rumania

Literally, he is a man without a country, if the current persecution of his race continues unabated. Millions of Jews throughout the world, anxious about the most recent "purge"—that of 1,120,000 Jews from Rumania—want to know the background of the crisis.

The Boston Evening American has asked leading Hebrew scholars in New England to discuss the question, and herewith presents the fifth of a series of articles on the subject.

Today, Rabbi Beryl Cohon of Brookline goes on with his analysis of the Jew in Europe.

By WILLIAM MICHELFELDER

It was New England's Calvin Coolidge who said the Jewish faith is predominantly the faith of liberty.

One spring morning in May, 1925, President Coolidge, enveloped in the clouds of meditation, sat down in his study and wrote these lines:

"The Jews are true to the teachings of their prophets. The Jewish religion is a faith of freedom . . . The influence of Jewish lore, Jewish law, Jewish culture and JEWISH SPIRIT, as expressed in the Bible, upon the foundation and development of many nations is unquestionable.

Rabbi Beryl Cohon, who yesterday expressed what he meant by the obnoxious "tribal nationalism" in Europe as the threat to Hebrew culture, today referred to the former President's words as a simple definition of tolerance.

Rabbi Cohon said:

"Premier Goga in Rumania ought to remember that those who claim the right of individual choice for themselves finally have to grant it to others.

"What man has the inherent right to expel 1,120,000 Jews from a country on his own initiative?

"The situation in Rumania, as in other parts of Europe, is horrible. The prayer of the Psalmist haunts my mind: 'How long, O Lord, how long?' for these decent, intelligent, God-fearing people.

"They have given themselves to Rumania as all other decent Rumanian citizens have. No values are recognized for the man in power is blind with prejudice, the lust for power and obsessed with the crack-pot idea of racial superiority."

(As argued in previous articles by Rabbi Cohon and other rabbis, there is no justification for the assertion by Premier Goga that Rumanians are descended from the ancient Romans. Each rabbi offered historic evidence against Goga's "social platform.")

Rabbi Cohon was inclined to grin when the name of the premier's new party was mentioned. The Christian Party.

"What mockery! It is a shame that the man dares take the liberty of using such a title when his organization has no respect for the laws of God or man. It is both tragic and amusing. Tragic, in the sense of its negative effect on millions of people. Amusing, in the sense that it reveals the mental processes of the dictator as none too profound."

The Rabbi pointed out if there was to be any logic in this racial angle at all, why not drive out King Carol?

"It is impossible to prove that Jews in Rumania are not Rumanians. They have as much right to be there as King Carol—and even Premier Goga. Aside from being Rumanians, they have earned the right to remain in the country by the sweat of the brow in honest toil, by faithful loyalty to the state. What more has Premier Goga, or any ruler, the right to ask of a native-born citizen?"

(The final article of this series on the plight of the Jew in Europe will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Rumania Eases Anti-Jewish Restrictions

BUCHAREST, Jan. 6 (INS)—Apparently impressed by "friendly representations" from Paris and London, Rumania's new Fascist-inclined regime today began modifying its anti-Jewish program.

The Christian national cabinet of Premier Octavian Goga adopted amendments to decrees which had already been approved for the restriction of Jewish activities.

It was reliably understood that the cabinet decided not to take sweeping action at this time against those of Rumania's 825,000 Jews who claim Rumanian citizenship.

WILL CONSULT LEAGUE

The case of Jewish citizens, it was said, will be submitted to the League of Nations before decrees depriving them of property, professional and social rights are put into effect.

The cabinet acted after the ministers of France and Great Britain called on Premier Goga and directed his attention to the treaty of 1919, under which Rumania bound herself to respect the rights of minorities.

As the result of the coincident actions by Britain and France, it was indicated the Goga government would proceed with a greater caution in its announced plan of expelling thousands of Jews from the country.

EDICTS ADOPTED

Decrees expropriating land held by non-citizens, mostly Jews, and restricting the fields of their businesses, professions and employment have already been adopted.

A typical edict, modelled after a law in Nazi Germany, was one forbidding Jews to employ non-Jewish women under 40 as household workers.

Cutter Rushes Aid To Hurt Fisherman

In response to a request for aid from the trawler Plymouth the coast guard cutter Cayuga sped eastward today to remove a fisherman suffering from a badly-injured hand.

The Plymouth, 250 miles east of Boston, reported the man's injury by radio, and the Cayuga was dispatched from Provincetown by coast guard headquarters here.

Tin Heir Off For Africa, Denies Rift

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (INS)—Sailing early today on the liner Franconia for a hunting trip in Africa, Henry J. "Bob" Topping, youthful tin plate heir, denied he had been handed a subpoena in a divorce action.

It had been reported that Mrs. Topping, the former Jayne Shadduck, was bringing suit for divorce and asking $2000 a month and counsel fees. She formerly was married to Jack Kirkland, playwright.

16,286 Priests Killed In Spain, Rebels Claim

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, Jan. 6 (INS)—Spanish Insurgent headquarters at Salamanca today alleged in an official statement that Spain's Reds have murdered at least 16,286 priests in a little less than two years.

These figures, it was asserted, do not include the number of priests missing or unaccounted for, nor those priests presently living in government-held territory whose fate is uncertain.

The purported wholesale murders enumerated in the insurgent statement took place since the elections of February, 1935, which brought the "People's Front" into power and produced the Rightist army revolt that led to the civil war.

On the snowy Teruel battlefront, meanwhile, the government claimed in a Barcelona dispatch that the bitter insurgent resistance inside Teruel has been "practically extinguished."

All reports reaching the frontier pointed to collapse of General Francisco Franco's counter-offensive to recapture Teruel, once stragetic spearhead of his salient toward the east coast.

There are signs that General Franco, badly in need of a spectacular victory, is preparing a new drive to capture Madrid, which his troops have besieged since November 7, 1936.

Japanese Planes Make New Raid On Hankow

Airport, Radio Station In Government Seat Bombed

SHANGHAI, Jan. 6 (INS)—Japanese war planes unleashed a fierce attack today against Hankow, seat of the Chinese government and headquarters of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

This afternoon's attack was the second in 24 hours. Twenty-two Japanese bombing planes, escorted by 16 fighting craft, raided the city.

Advices said the Nipponese aerial armada was greeted by terrific Chinese anti-aircraft fire, but that no plane was hit. They dropped 50 high explosive bombs on the Hankow military airport and broadcasting station and started a huge fire in a nearby slum section of the temporary capital.

(Dispatches from Hongkong said yesterday's raid on Hankow caused "fearful destruction and loss of life." The Hankow Hospital, radio station and scores of houses were destroyed by incendiary bombs, the reports charged.

JAP ARMY MOVES

The Japanese raid evidently was launched in retaliation for Chinese aerial attack on Japanese-held Wuhu, on the Yangtze river above Nanking, aimed at destruction of the airdrome there. Chinese reports said six Japanese planes were destroyed.

Meanwhile, here in Shanghai, Japanese military censors were posted in all cable company offices to supervise incoming and outgoing mesages in a new move by Japan to strengthen her grip on the huge Chinese metropolis.

In the battle areas to the north and west, two huge Japanese armies, one moving north and the other south along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, were rapidly approaching a strategic junction near the vital railroad city of Hsuchow.

U. S. FLIERS AID

The Nipponese forces were pushing through a spectacular maneuver by which they plan to gain control of virtually all eastern China above the Yangtze river after effecting a juncture. This morning they were reported only 200 miles apart.

Chinese reports received here this afternoon claimed 150 American aviators are now enrolled in China's growing "foreign legion of the air."

The Americans were reported to be part of a volunteer air force composed of 450 foreign military airmen. The British were said to have contributed 55 volunteers. Most of the others are understood to be Rusians flying Soviet planes.

Soviets Jail 34 For Sabotage

LONDON, Jan. 6 (INS)—Thirty-four workers in the Leningrad armament factory in the U.S.S.R. have been jailed on charges of sabotage, the London Daily Express reported today from Warsaw.

The arrests were made, said the report, following explosion of a motor being tested for the Soviet battleship Kirov, now under construction. The explosion killed five persons and injured 18, the Express stated.

The London Daily Mail reported from Riga that scores, including Red Army officers, had been arrested following discovery of a plot against the life of Dictator Josef Stalin.

Jews Barred From Nazi Bathhouses

NURNBERG, Germany, Jan. 6—Jews will be prohibited from using public bathhouses as the result of frequent disturbances involving Aryans and Jews.

Previously the baths merely had carried notices, "Jews are not wanted." Now Jews will be forced to go to the Jewish Hospital, three miles distant, for health baths.

Soviets Fear U.S. Spy Case Tangle

Complications Seen If American Envoy Visits Mrs. Rubens

(Copyright, 1938)

MOSCOW, Jan. 6 (INS)—International complications are bound to follow if American consular officials insist on visiting the mysterious Mr. and Mrs. Adolph A. Rubens, presumably held in Lubyanka prison on spy charges, a Soviet official declared today.

Faced with official identification of the couple as the "Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson" who disappeared from the National Hotel here in weird circumstances some weeks ago, Soviet authorities declined to reveal the charges on which they were arrested.

To all questions regarding the couple's exact whereabouts the Kremlin turned a deaf ear.

FEAR COMPLICATIONS

When questioned specifically about the formal identification by consular officials yesterday, a spokesman declared:

"We have received no information."

This was interpreted as meaning the United States government has not yet acted formally in the matter.

The spokesman then voiced the Kremlin's fear international complications are certain to result in the event consular authorities insist on seeing the couple.

BORN IN AMERICA

Hundreds of citizens of varying nationalities are imprisoned throughout Russia, but for the past four years the Soviets have refused to permit official visitations.

American consular officials declared they are certain Mrs. Rubens, born in a Philadelphia suburb, is an American citizen. There is some doubt whether Rubens, born in Latvia, is an American citizen, but it is contended that under treaty terms he is entitled to the aid of United States diplomatic representatives.

Arrests Loom as N. Y. Pushes Rubens' Quiz

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Federal agents finally broke the baffling passport angles of the "Donald L. Robinsons" mystery today, with a steady 13-hour questioning of long-sought "Mr. D." of the Tammany "contact" chain.

"Mr. D.," key man in the passport puzzle also known under the name of "Louis Epstein," believed to be fictitious, was located last night when the chain link next to him—"Mr. C."—finally decided to cease "protecting" him.

Thomas Fitch, state department special agent in charge of the investigation, who conducted the all-night questioning, said today the case "looks good."

Promise of startling revelations and several arrests was made by one official, who said:

Order to Sit Appealed, Too

So. End Man Objects Also to Sentence

After appealng a four months' sentence in the House of Correction on non-support charges, Owen Stewart of the South End went one step farther in municipal court today by taking an appeal of an order to "sit-down."

After Judge Jennie Loitman Barron pronounced sentence a court officer told the defendant to sit down in the prisoner's dock.

Looking at the judge, Stewart announced: "Your honor, I appeal," and then sat down.

CIO Union Offices Tied Up by Strike

DETROIT, Jan. 6 (INS)—All work in the headquarters offices of the CIO's United Automobile Workers union came to a halt for more than an hour today, when girl workers there struck. The stoppage was settled when girl clerks agreed to submit their grievances to arbitration.

The girls stopped work after the union had hired a boy to work in the all-feminine addressograph room.

MRS. ADOLPH A. RUBENS
Fate Still Unknown

Judge Quits, Raps State's Pay System

His resignation was accepted by Governor Hurley without comment.

Johnson denounced the present system of paying special justices and demanded that "adequate compensation" be provided in such instances. He wrote the Governor:

"To continue any longer in the dual role of judge and lawyer is to run the risk of doing both jobs unsatisfactorily.

"The present system is fundamentally wrong and demands a change if we are to maintain the integrity of our judges and provide our citizens with proper protection."

He said special justices receive an annual salary of approximately $500. The system, he declared, was handed down from the times when farmers and merchants were called in to act as justices of the peace and were paid a specified sum for each sitting.

Judge Johnson in a separate statement asserted that unless there were drastic changes, the Massachusetts judiciary would be occupied by persons mentally and physically incompetent, independently wealthy or unscrupulous.

Appointed in 1930 by Former Governor Allen, Judge Johnson is an authority on social service work and juvenile procedure. He is widely known for his treatment of domestic cases and his advocacy of a "family court."

Coughlin's Talks On 58 Stations

DETROIT, Jan. 6 (INS)—A network of 58 stations will carry the addresses of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin when the radio priest resumes his radio broadcasts Sunday, it was announced today.

Leo Fitzpatrick, vice-president and general manager of radio station WJR here, key station in the chain, made the announcement.

Father Coughlin voluntarily cancelled a series scheduled to start last fall when Archbishop Edward A. Mooney criticized the priest's attacks on the CIO and President Roosevelt. He later decided to return to the air, however, when he received thousands of letters from listeners.

The list of stations includes:

Mounted Stork Is Given Tufts by Mrs. Johnson

Looking most unlike an African explorer in her mink coat, diamond bracelets, and red lacquered finger nails, Mrs. Martin Johnson, widow of the famed explorer, arrived in Boston today for an over-night stay.

But a suggestion of the jungle was retained in the mounted stork included in her entourage was a gift to the Tufts Medical School Alumni Association, which recently chose the bird as its mascot.

The presentation was made to Dr. Alonzo K. Paine, president of the association, at Hotel Statler. Dr. Paine has probably delivered more babies than any other doctor in Greater Boston.

INJURIES RECALLED

"And the bird performs the same service in Africa as in America," Mrs. Johnson explained.

"The natives believe the stork brings the African babies, too."

Mrs. Johnson, who suffered injuries in the plane crash that cost her husband's life and more recently was hurt in an auto accident, has recovered.

Mrs. Johnson's favorite animal is the gorilla—gorillas that weigh 550 pounds and reach 6 feet in height.

ON LECTURE TOUR

The explorer reminisced about her career.

"Martin Johnson swept me off my feet when I was 16 and I made my first expedition to the South Sea Islands. For the next 27 years we continued exploring in the wilds of the world.

"Only three out of the 27 did we spend in civilization."

Bill Would Bar Freedom For Boy's Killer

Legislation to keep life prisoners behind bars until they can no longer menace society was sought today as a result of Joseph Pimental's guilty plea to the sex murder of five-year-old Chester Harris.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware filed a bill with the clerk of the House seeking to bar parole for lifers until they serve 25 years, or reach the age of 65.

The measure was filed, Sawyer said, after consideration of the case of the 24-year-old Cambridge "strong boy," who "escaped the death penalty by pleading guilty to second degree murder," Representative Sawyer declared.

"Under the existing statute, 15 years is practically the minimum sentence for a life prisoner. Thus, a vicious youth, little more than 20, could have his case considered for pardon in his late 30's—an outrageous situation."

At the same time, District Attorney William J. Foley moved to bring Pimental to trial on four other indictments to ensure that he would not be freed. The indictments charge him with sex offenses against children.

Pimental's surprise plea and sentence came yesterday before Judge Harold P. Williams in Suffolk Superior Court over the objections of Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle.

Missing Medway Bride Is Located in Milford

MILFORD, Jan. 6—Police search for Mrs. Doris Stevens Ashworth, 19, roadhouse entertainer, reported missing from the Medway home of her parents since New Year's Eve, ended this afternoon when she was located living here.

Mrs. Ashworth, whose honeymoon two years ago was interrupted in its second day by the arrest of Joseph Ashworth of Holliston on bad check charges, had been reported as vanishing New Year's Eve, police said.

Police said Ashworth had been reported seen in the vicinity of Milford and Holliston about three weeks ago, the first report of any trace of him since his recent escape from the state prison at Thomaston, Me.

'Honeymoon' Ship Off for Junk Heap

FALL RIVER, Jan. 6 (INS)—Stripped of all movable objects, even to her riding lights, the Commonwealth, flagship of the Old Fall River Line, started her last cruise today, headed for a Baltimore junk pile.

Last of the four vessels of the now defunct company, the thirty-year-old craft was the most luxurious boat on the famous "Honeymoon Line."

Flee Watertown Fire

Fire of undetermined origin today drove two families to the street and caused damage estimated at $1000 in a two-story frame dwelling in Derby road, Watertown.

Mansfield Aide Is Bride

Mary L. Thompson, former personal secretary to ex-Mayor Mansfield of Boston, was married today to Eric A. Rosdahl, Jr., of Dorchester, in the Immaculate Conception Church in Malden.

The ceremony was performed by Monsignor Richard Neagle. Following the ceremony a reception was held at Hotel Somerset.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Thompson of Malden. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eric Rosdahl also of Malden.

Recognize Emperor of Ethiopia

ROME, Jan. 6 (AP)—The ministry of popular culture announced today that Rumania would recognize the Italian empire by accrediting a minister to Vittorio Emanuele as King and Emperor of Ethiopia.

Society Leaders Flock to Dinner Opening Community Drive

By BETTY ALDEN

ORGANIZING and putting over an annual campaign to raise money for the support of Boston's hospitals and charitable organizations, is a lot of hard and serious work . . . but it is not without its enjoyable moments . . .

All the various committee members, solicitors and officers who gathered in the Copley-Plaza ballroom last evening for the Dutch Treat dinner which is held each year as a final rally preceding the Community Federation drive for funds, had a most instructive, as well as enjoyable evening . . .

LUCY POPE

During dinner the seriousness of the affair was lightened by music and entertainment . . . Four little boys, aged 9 to 11, who are "midget" members of the Boys' Club of Boston, surprised and pleased everyone with their program of songs and piano selections . . . Members of the Polish choir of the International Institute sang some folk songs, and Sammy Eisen and twenty or more musicians of Ruby Newman's orchestra, who donated their services, played throughout the dinner . . . Between courses, Sammy performed the specialty which he has perfected at deb parties the past couple of years, and as the words of old songs were projected on a movie screen, he lead a community song fest . . .

Stern faced bankers and business men, as well as debutante ushers, joined in with a will and had a merry time singing such old favorites as "I've Been Working on the Railroad," "My Gal Sal" and "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" . . .

After the singing, and the last of the dishes had been cleared away, Leverett Saltonstall, chairman of the campaign, called the meeting to order and introduced the speakers on the serious side of the program . . .

Charles Francis Adams outlined the ever present need for aid to the 109 agencies which are doing such marvelous work in elevating the standards of health and living conditions as well as giving guidance to the under privileged children of Boston . . . Rt. Rev. Granville Bennett was also a speaker . . .

It would be far more simple to mention society folk who were absent from the throng of dinner guests, than to enumerate those present . . . for nearly every one of social prominence around Boston was there . . . each one eager to help boost the campaign and put it far over the top . . . Isabella Grandin was present with her mother, while at a table set in one of the boxes which line the ballroom, Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, with green orchids on her black dinner gown, dined with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devens, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church and Mr. and Mrs. Forrester A. Clark . . .

Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge's diamonds sparkled as she passed the rolls and petits fours to her neighbor, William C. Cox and others at their table were Mrs. Cox, Mr. Coolidge, the Harrison Gardiners, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft and Jane Bancroft . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Blodget, the latter wearing a black velvet gown with ermine sleeves, were in a party with Mrs. George Mumford, Mrs. Reginald Gray and Mrs. Francis Gray and there were hundreds and hundreds of others present . . .

Patricia Preston to Wed January 15

NEXT WEEK there will be a continual round of cocktail parties, dinners and other gatherings in honor of Patricia Preston and Farley Wheelwright whose wedding will take place the end of the week, Saturday the 15th . . . Starting off the whirl of pre-wedding festivities will be the dinner party at which Martha Proctor and her father, James Howe Proctor of Commonwealth avenue, will be hosts . . . Martha, along with a number of other close friends of the bride-to-be, will be one of the bridesmaids at the wedding . . .

* * *

Young marrieds and some of their friends among the bachelor boys and girls are having a very special subscription dance at The Country Club on January 28 . . . Invitations to the party have just been issued to a very exclusive list of young people and among those serving as patrons and patronesses are Mr. and Mrs. John Yerxa, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogerson, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Soule, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Davis Taylor, John Grandin, Jr., Nathaniel Hamlin and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyeth . . .

Leave Soon for Central America

MEMBERS OF DR. ALFRED V. KIDDER'S family are putting the finishing touches on their preparations for another trip to the tropics . . . for Dr. Kidder, who is head of the division of historical research of the Carnegie Foundation, will take Mrs. Kidder and their daughters, Faith and Barbara, to Central America when he goes on another expedition to excavate relics of ancient civilizations . . .

They are leaving the first of February . . . a few weeks later than their sailing date last winter, when they all made a similar trip and had such an interesting time that they prolonged their stay in Guatemala much longer than originally planned . . .

Faith who thinks "it will be great to get away from the snow and cold of Beantown" was having sort of an informal farewell party at Lucy Pope's coming out luncheon at the Ritz yesterday afternoon . . . Of course, many of the girls listened enviously to her description of the trip . . . but, others seemed perfectly satisfied to look forward to skiing week-ends and all the other activities at home which will be a far cry from Faith's fascinating experiences digging up fragments of pottery and carved stone remnants of long forgotten civilization . . .

Joan Thomson, who is enjoying the long winter vacation from Bennington College, was one of the attractive debs at the large "H" shaped table set for Lucy's luncheon . . . There were around 80 guests in all, and each came away wearing a bright little corsage of spring flowers . . . Helen Blanchard, with bright curly feathers making a wreath around her turban, was one of the guests as were Patty Spencer, Virginia Prout in a becoming frock of blue and silver metal cloth, Ellen Moseley, who is just back from Washington where she was a guest at a holiday party at the White House, Sally Upham, Mary Gray, Sylvia Van Ness, Nancy Peabody, Mrs. George Clement, Mrs. Henry McB. Parker, Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike, Jr., who wore a small pink velvet hat encircled with rich dubonnet feathers and a brown costume, Constance Turner and Jean Halladay.

Engaged Couple Among Guests at Party

ALAN McCLENNAN LOUISE FIELD HERMAN

MISS LOUISE FIELD HERMAN and her fiance, Alan McClennan, one of the popular young engaged couples, were in a jolly mood when photographed at a recent party given in their honor. Miss Herman, a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward W. Herman of Woodridge, Lincoln. Mr. McClennan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. McClennan of Cambridge and East Harwich, and is a member of the senior class at Harvard University.

Complete Plans For Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard S. Carter of Paris, France, and their son, David Carter, are spending a few days at the St. Regis Hotel in New York before coming on to Boston to supervise the last minute details of the wedding of their daughter, Alice Mildred Carter, to Philip Boyer, Jr., which will take place at Trinity Church on January 12.

Miss Carter is a granddaughter of Mr. Thomas Thacher of Beacon street. Her mother is the former Hope Thacher of Boston.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Boyer of New York.

Is It Luck or Bridge Brains?

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

How many players have rubbed the salve of self praise on their wounds in this fashion: "I don't think I threw away a single trick by bad play."

Just the other evening this was said by the player who had been declarer in the following hand:

East dealer.

North:
♠ K J 4
♡ A 9 5 3
◇ A J 10 4

West:
♠ A
♡ K Q J 10 2
◇ 8 5 3
♣ 9 6 4 2

East:
♠ 10 9 6 3
♡ 8 7
◇ K 6 2
♣ J 10 7 3

South:
♠ Q 8 7 5 2
♡ 6 4
◇ Q 9 7
♣ Q 8 5

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	Dble.
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Attention is called to North's single spade raise, following his own takeout double. Actually North's bidding was perfect. He had forced his partner to show a suit and for all he (North) knew, South might have a worthless hand with only a four-card spade suit.

West opened the heart King. Dummy's Ace won, and the spade King was laid down, losing to West's blank Ace. West cashed his heart trick, and declarer soon found that he had to lose another trump trick and the diamond King, thus going down one.

Declarer had committed a very common error. The opening bidder, West, was practically marked with the spade Ace; surely with all the top cards in declarer's sight, West's bid was light enough even with that card.

After winning the heart Ace declarer should have led a low diamond from dummy, with the intention of playing the nine-spot. East might have put up the King but, whether or not he did, declarer's diamond Queen would have become an entry to permit a trump lead toward the King-Jack.

Later, declarer could have ruffed a heart as a second entry whereby to pick up East's long trump. With a spade lead toward dummy, the contract would have become a laydown.

Notre Dame Alumnae Sponsor Benefit

Boston alumnae of Notre Dame's a group which believes in a varied and active program for the winter season.

Hardly had the strains of music of its mid-winter dance at the Puritan died away when the next benefit affair pops off the horizon—three performances of "The Monastery" on January 14 at the Fine Arts Theater. The first showing, scheduled for five o'clock, will be followed by one at seven with the concluding performance being given at nine o'clock.

Reservations may be made with any member of the ticket committee, Mrs. Marguerite Maguire, Mrs. John E. Sullivan, Teresa Barry, Mary J. McCarthy and Katharine Monahan.

Members of the entire alumnae group are working most industriously to fill the theater. Prominent among them are Eleanor Spillane, Alice Barry, Margaret McCarthy, Lillian Connelly, Helen Morgan and Elizabeth Dyer.

Serving on the committee are Mrs. Charles F. Lynch, Helena Mahoney, Julia and Madeleine McAndrew, Mrs. Joseph Burke, Edith McPeake, Betty Crosby, Mary Mahan and Mrs. Thomas J. Walsh, Jr.

Mary Malloy, Mary Boyle, Helen Crane, Audrey Swenderman, Dorothy Noonan, Raymore Sullivan, Louise Friary are also included in the active group of committee workers.

Also doing their share by bringing friends to the benefit performance are Geraldine McInerney, Helen Donovan, Winifred Burdick and Muriel Kingsley.

Chapter Hosts At Luncheon

Mrs. William H. Tyler of Newton was chairman of the committee for the luncheon and chapter session of the Paul Revere Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution which was held at the Hotel Brunswick this afternoon.

Mrs. Forrest Price of Brookline was chairman of hostesses and Mrs. R. F. Puffer of Wellesley, chapter regent, presided. The speakers were Ethel Lane Hersey, state vice-regent of the D. A. R. and Dr. Kincaide of Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn.

Gill, Hub Lecturer, Honored by Pope

Word from the Vatican, received by relatives of John T. Gill, prominent Boston lecturer, revealed today he has been made a Knight Commander of the Order of Saint Gregory by Pope Pius.

The honor is one of the highest attainable by a lay member of the Catholic Church. Gill is nationally known as an authority on air brakes and locomotive engineering.

Towels-Beard Bridal Jan. 29

Barbara Beard, daughter of E. Leonard Beard of New York and Palm Beach, and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. Leonard Beard of Cambridge, has set the date for her marriage to Theril Rankin Towels, 3d. The wedding will take place quietly in New York city on January 29.

Only relatives and a limited group of close friends of the couple will be present at the ceremony in St. Bartholomew's Church and the small reception afterwards at Sherry's. Her sister, Gloria Beard, will be her only attendant and Stanley Odium, Jr., will be best man.

The bridegroom-to-be, who is a cousin of the late Robert W. Bingham, former ambassador to the Court of St. James, is associated in the banking business.

Braintree Group To Hold Dance

A night of dining and dancing is in store for Sacred Heart alumni of Braintree who are holding a dance tomorrow night at the Commata Club of Braintree.

George Clinton, president of the group, heads the reception committee. Helping to make the evening one of the gayest in the annals are Mrs. William Erwin, Dorothy Smith, Mrs. John Sullivan, Katherine Dunning and Katherine Erwin.

Dance to Benefit Jewish Juniors

Millie Levin and Bess Bloomberg head the committee making plans for a dance January 29 at Dorchester Manor to benefit the current charity drive of the Boston Section, National Council of Jewish Juniors.

Assisting in the campaign for funds are Ruth Elsholz, Ralph Levine, Nathan Silverstein, Frieda Liner, Ruth Levy and Samuel Fleisher.

Farm, Garden Folk Sponsor Lecture

Dr. Walter Gropius To Give Talk on Architecture

Friday afternoon symphony concerts are a tradition in the Boston social world. The concerts take precedence over any other social appointment and wise hostesses plan no teas or parties on symphony Fridays.

But there will be no symphony concert tomorrow afternoon so the members of the New England Farm and Garden Association have committed no social error in planning an afternoon lecture. Quite to the contrary, a great many of the regular symphony subscribers are welcoming the lecture as an interesting and instructive diversion to fill their "open" afternoon.

Dr. Walter Gropius, professor of architecture at Harvard, will lecture on "The True Sources of Modern Architecture" at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in John Hancock Hall. The Farm and Garden Association committee chose Dr. Gropius as the lecturer because he is one of the world's outstanding exponents of modern architectural design. He is famous for his work at the Bauhaus, a practical art school in Germany, and for his designs for German buildings and homes.

The latest list of subscribers to the lecture includes Mrs. George H. Lyman, Jr., Mrs. Henry Lyman, Mrs. Howe Richards, Miss Mary S. Rousmaniere, Mrs. Frances W. Bird, Mrs. J. C. Cameron Bradley, Mrs. Winthrop L. Carter, Mrs. Harold F. Babcock, Mrs. Charles S. Bird, Mrs. Henry O. Clark, Mrs. Guy Cunningham, Mrs. W. E. Cushing and Mrs. Redington M. DeCormis.

Alan Mrs. J. H. Folliday, Mrs. Kuno Francke, Mrs. Harrison L. Harley, Mrs. William James, Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman, Mrs. William H. Long, Mrs. T. H. Mahoney, Mrs. S. Higginson Nash, Miss Margaret Redmond, Mrs. Walter G. Resor, Mrs. Thorvald S. Ross, Mrs. Frank M. Sawtell and Miss Olive Simes.

Miss Hodges To Wed

Bostonians are interested in the announcement received yesterday from Mrs. Amory G. Hodges of Park avenue, New York, telling of the engagement of her granddaughter, Miss Rosamond Hodges, to Sterling S. Adams, grandson of Mrs. Edmund J. Shattuck of Norwood, Mass.

Miss Hodges is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John King Hodges. She was graduated from Miss Chapin's School and made her debut at a dinner given by Mrs. Henry Rogers Winthrop at her home in Woodbury, L. I.

Mr. Adams was graduated from Harvard in 1933 and is a member of the Harvard and Spee Clubs, and the Racquet and Tennis Club of New York. He is associated in the banking business in New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

Suffolk 'U' Plans Dedication Feb. 6

Suffolk University will be host to educators from other New England universities and colleges, as well as to leaders in industry, commerce, government and the professions at the dedicatory exercises and reception to be held in connection with the formal opening of the greatly enlarged Suffolk University Building on Beacon Hill.

Dr. Donald W. Miller, dean of the College of Liberal Arts of Suffolk University, has been appointed general chairman of the dedicatory exercises, which are to be held on Sunday afternoon, February 6.

'Jim' Roosevelt Happy in Bay State Home

Frolics at Framingham With Wife, Daughter, Hopkins Child

FRAMINGHAM, Jan. 6—James Roosevelt intends to be a good citizen of this quiet Massachusetts town, in which he recently established residence, the eldest son and secretary to the President said today.

"Jimmy" and his wife, the former Betty Cushing of Brookline, and their little daughter, Sarah, arrived at their 12-room Framingham Center home last night and were out bright and early today enjoying the New England winter.

AT TOWN MEETINGS

The President's son will return to his duties in Washington Tuesday, but Mrs. Roosevelt and Sarah will remain indefinitely. The couple's other daughter, Catherine, is visiting friends in New Haven, Conn.

Attired in riding breeches, boots and a sweater and scorning a hat, young Roosevelt told reporters who asked him if he meant to participate in Framingham affairs:

"We have the largest town meetings in the country. I certainly shall try to attend them and I consider it the duty of every citizen to take an active part in his local government."

He laughingly parried queries on his possible candidacy for Governor of this state, although his candidacy has frequently been mentioned.

WANTS BILL CHANGED

Revision of the wages and hour bill so as "to give Massachusetts a 'break'" also was urged by young Roosevelt.

He declared he believed the law should be altered to prevent industries in this state from moving to another state because of differences in labor conditions.

Meanwhile, under the watchful eyes of a secret service man, the two little girls and Mrs. Roosevelt, a pretty picture in a blue ski suit trimmed with red, frolicked in the snow. Later the entire group took a long walk.

Muriel Reardon Engaged

At a supper dance last night in the Balinese Room of the Hotel Somerset, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Reardon of Somerville announced the engagement of their daughter, Muriel Justine, to James Joseph Monahan of Everett.

Among those dining and dancing in honor of the popular pair were Eleanor Sampson, James Sampson, Mary C. McCarthy, John McHugh, Daniel Harkins, Esther Mulrenin, George Mulcahy and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Brown.

Assisting with the receiving of guests was the sister of the bride-elect, Mrs. Paul Hennessey, the former Evelyn Reardon, and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Monahan, parents of the future bridegroom.

Others numbered among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lane, Aerial Goodman, John Monahan, Doris Quinn, Frank tGordon, Lillian Pearce, Elliot Thomas, Doris Poole and John Daunt.

Irish Actors Hold Sway in Boston

Humor, Personality Developed In Dublin Abbey School

By ANN MARSTERS

RIA MOONEY
Player, Teacher

Now we present Miss Ria Mooney who is appearing this weekend in John M. Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World." She plays the heroine, Pegeen Mike.

Ria joined the Abbey Theater Players in 1923. She is a bright-eyed woman, and has that sparkling personality and delightful sense of humour which all the Irish players seem to possess.

She talked, mainly, about the Abbey Theater school of which she was placed in charge two years ago.

PICKED STUDENTS

The school is, of course, directly connected with the Abbey Theater, and several present members of the touring company are graduates.

"The school will accept no more than 35 students," said Miss Mooney, "although every year we receive nearly 200 applications. We give innumberable auditions, and the most promising individuals are enrolled.

"Quite a few applications come from America—but we don't encourage American pupils. They would have no future in the Abbey Theater itself. Their accent would be against them—and, of course, all our members must be Irish."

EXPERIMENTAL THEATER

In connection with the school there is the Abbey Experimental Theater. It is a tiny theater, in the same building as the Abbey.

In Miss Mooney's words, the Experimental Theater works like this:

"Students are financing the experiment. Each is a shareholder in the society, his weekly contribution—a very small one—constituting a share. They produce the plays themselves, they design their own sets, make and paint their own scenery and, when necessary, make their own stage clothes.

"The whole purpose of the Experimental Theater is to encourage young Irish playwrights, develop Irish producers and scenic designers, and give experience to acting talent which will eventually find its way on to the Abbey stage."

Carrie Finnell At Old Howard

Carrie Finnell

Billed as the "Remote Control Girl," she recently completed an engagement of 150 weeks at a popular New York night club and threatens to repeat her sensational success here.

Assisting her is a company of 50, including Billy ("Cheese 'n' Crackers") Hagan and Harry Conley, comedians; Lovels Lane, dancer; Lottie Boles, Lew Brown, Connie Ryan, Tommy Levett, Harriett and Helen Moulton, the BeGuchi troupe, representing the Orient, and a chorus of 25 singing and dancing girls.

On the screen are "New Faces of 1937," with Joe Penner, Milton Berle and Parkyakarkus and "Park Avenue Lodger," with George O'Brien.

Col. Guggenheim Married in Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 6 (INS)—Colonel M. Robert Guggenheim, son of the late Daniel Guggenheim, copper king, and Mrs. Rebecca Pollard Van Lennep were married here today. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Elisha King, pastor of the Miami Beach community church, aboard the Guggenheim yacht, Firenze.

Guard Ruth Etting Following Threat

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6—Ruth Etting, noted blues singer and actress, was assigned a bodyguard today by District Attorney Buron Fitts after she reported receiving a disturbing long distance telephone message from New York.

New First-Run Films at Hub

Two first-run features distinguish the new program opening tomorrow on Loew's Hub Theater.

The first of these is "Lady Behave," a Republic picture, and the companion feature is "Non-Stop New York," Gaumont-British production.

Sally Eilers, Neil Hamilton and Joseph Schildkraut are featured in "Lady Behave," which deals with a lady's adventures in extricating her madcap sister from a marriage tangle. Supporting players include Grant Mitchell, Patricia Farr, Marcia Mae Jones, Jim Lucas, Mary Gordon and Robert Greig.

"Non-Stop New York," which co-stars Anna Lee and John Loder, is Gaumont-British's much-heralded and prophetic picture of transatlantic passage and has to do with a chorus girl who gets involved in a New York murder case.

Steamer Burned

HAIFA, Palestine, Jan. 7—Fire has destroyed the 2468-ton Palestine mail steamer Har Carmel at Constanza, one of two ships owned by the only Jewish steamship company in Palestine.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Benny Dislikes Radio Work; Film Fan

Jack to Quit When Contract Expires; To Produce Films

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6 (INS)—Jack Benny doesn't like radio work and plans to retire from it when his present contract expires. He hopes to become a film producer.

That was the quiet announcement today of the famous comedian credited with being radio's most popular star, in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"Radio is too exacting," remarked Benny as he asked a waitress to give him the bottom breakfast roll from a mountainous stack. "While it may require only 18 to 20 hours a week to prepare our half hour's show, it's constantly on my mind and doesn't give me much leisure.

"I realize that popularity of an act can be a fleeting thing and yet being human I hope ours may not lose its many friends. However, my main aim right now is to become a film producer, a branch of the profession in which I might be able to get by."

Benny is credited with being radio's highest-paid comedian, and yet he insisted he has far less money saved up than his salary might indicate.

"If I were money mad," he said, "I suppose the Benny fortune by this time would amount to quite a bit. What I have, however, is small enough to shock plenty of people. There's such a thing as the income tax, you know, and plenty of other items that take much of my income."

2 Wills Cut Off Near Relatives

SALEM, Jan. 6—Two wills cutting off near relatives in disposing of small estates were filed in probate court today.

The entire $9000 estate of Horace P. Giles of Merrimac, who died Sept. 27, 1937, was left to his half-sister, Katie Wells Smith of East Hardwick, Vt. A sister, Mary Giles Newhall of Lynn, and another half-sister, Jessie Cummings of Springfield, were not mentioned. In the will Giles said he "purposely excluded all other relatives."

A nephew, Charles Foster Perkins of Salem, was cut off in the will of John Webber Perkins, who died Sept. 29 in Lynn, leaving most of his $2500 property to Chester Perkins Brown of Swampscott, no relative.

A provision that a Greek testament from the library of Frank Lewis Duley of Gloucester be always kept in the family was contained in Duley's will bequeathing his Lanesville home and property to his widow and son.

Peer Loses Fight For Screen Cash

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6—Charles Guy Fulke Greville, Earl of Warwick, known to the screen as Michael Brooke, lost his court attempt to collect $7804 from M-G-M studio.

Louis B. Mayer, studio head, testified that the English lord's screen tests showed Brooke "too stiff" for film acting.

Oooo! Stars' Kisses Bliss Despite Camera

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6 (INS)—Their first kisses in front of the cameras, clasped in the arms of one of Hollywood's handsome men, was quite as emotion quaking as "the real thing" under the moon back home, Claudette Colbert, Carole Lombard, Gladys Swarthout and other screen beauties confessed today.

"When John Boles took me into his arms for my first screen kiss," Miss Swarthout said, "I could feel my heart pounding. His kiss was a lot of fun, and I shan't soon forget it."

KISSES KEPT HER AWAKE

Miss Lombard recalled the first time she offered her lips to a man in front of the cameras:

"I've forgotten the name of the picture, but the kiss stands out in my memory like a flare in the night. The man was Warner Baxter. He kissed me four times, and I was so flustered I didn't sleep at all that night. I've never had a bigger thrill, either before or after."

A kiss probably unique in Hollywood occurred the other day. It was the one that Gene Raymond placed on the lips of Olympe Bradna. At the age of 17, the French actress, who has always been so closely chaperoned by her parents that she has never had a "date" in the American meaning of the word, was kissed for the first time, either on or off the screen, in "Stolen Heaven," music drama.

THIS IS BLISS

"Oooo! It was much fun!" she said right after the first "take." She was kissed twice more in following shots of the scene.

"Now I think I will look forward more than ever to my first kiss without an audience," she smiled with a gesture at the electricians, grips, prop men, and others on the set.

Claudette Colbert can't remember her first real kiss—it happened in Paris when she was a little girl—but she has no difficulty in recalling her first one in front of the cameras.

"I fell in love just a little with the man," she explained. "He was David Newell, and the name of the picture was 'Hole in the Wall.'

"I was frightened to death at the prospect. I thought I would be overcome with embarrassment.

"Kissing a man for the screen is an intimate thing. You can't cheat the way they do on the stage. You really have to 'give.'

"I was surprised, however, that I didn't mind at all. My mother used to tell me as a little girl I was brazen. I guess she was right. Incidentally, I still like to kiss."

Damon Runyon

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 6—We once heard of a newspaper writer who had a long, and reasonably prosperous career, and went to his grave deeply mourned by his ever-loving wife, and several friends, without ever having named the ten best anything.

He was a commentator on general subjects — politics, drama, literature, the news of the day, and anything else that struck his fancy. Nonetheless, he never named the ten best anything.

He never named the ten best plays, the ten best movies, the ten best books, and ten best restaurants, the ten best writers, the ten best bartenders, the ten best bootblacks, or the ten best taxi drivers. He never named even the nine best.

He was practically ostentatious about this, not naming the ten best anything. His restraint in the matter came to be regarded as strictly a pose. It was too unnatural. His fellow citizens decided that he just wanted to appear different. His fellow citizens felt that he was a bit of a snob toward a good old American tradition.

HOLDS SELF ALOOF

When all the other writers in the land were gumming up the columns of the public prints with their ten bests, this guy held himself aloof. He never named the ten best Smithfields of the stage or screen. He never named the ten best songs, or the ten best tap dancers. He never named the ten best movie directors, and that is what brought him the reputation, shortly before his death, of being an eccentric.

It is said that his employer once broached to him, by way of a compromise, the suggestion that the writer name at least the five best something, but the writer shook his head and walked away.

It is perhaps just as well that he departed this life soon afterwards because the rumor runs that his employer was getting ready to tie a tea kettle to him. The employer could not endure the ignominy of having a writer who never named the ten best anything. It hurt circulation.

FILES SEARCH

We confess to total disbelief in the story of this writer when first we heard it. We had the files of the newspaper on which he worked closely searched, confident that we would discover that sometime during his career he had named the ten best something.

Nothing of the kind came to light. As far as we could ascertain, he not only never named the ten best anything—he never named the ten most anything. That is, the ten most beautiful women, or the ten most beautiful men. The thought struck us that perhaps the poor fellow was a mental case.

He never could have been a sports writer, of course. A sports writer must always hold himself in readiness to name the ten best something. He must be prepared to name the ten best jockeys, the ten best baseball players, the ten best football coaches, the ten best horses, and the ten best track guys. He would have to name the ten best fighters, too, but for the fact that there are no ten best. There are only three best.

STRAIN INCREASED

When it comes to football players, the sports writer has to name not the ten best, but the eleven best, so as to make up a full team, an extra strain on the imagination that, happily, dramatic and screen writers and other ten besters do not have to undergo.

After noting the travail of these lads in mustering their ten bests, we are inclined to doubt that they would be able to take on that additional best that is the lot of the sports writer, without running the risk of a serious breakdown.

The importance of the sports writers naming of their ten and eleven bests may be indicated by the fact that their namings are solemnly assembled by the press associations in a sort of a poll, and carefully winnowed, until out of the mass the press associations get their own ten and eleven bests, which are dispatched about the country to the newspapers at slightly more expense than the situation would seem to warrant.

The fact that perhaps 75 per cent of the sports writers who name their ten anad eleven bests without having personally viewed any of the ten or eleven, is a mere detail.

So is the fact that the sports reading public may get a wholly erroneous idea of the ten and eleven bests in its field of interests, as for instance, when the sports writers name as one of their ten bests a gladiator who gets hit on the gob the day after the bests are proclaimed by some bloke who does not make even the fifteen bests.

That once happened to us when we were in the business of naming the ten and eleven bests in sport, and while it did not entirely cure us, it made us more careful.

The more we think of that deceased writer we have been talking about not naming the ten best movie directors, the more we are convinced that he was something more than eccentric. We suspect he was a cad.

Prince Michael Sick as Storm Tosses Ship

Boat, Carrying Carol's Son, Is Saved by British Vessel

BUCHAREST, Jan. 6 (INS)—After a dangerous experience in which he suffered nothing more than seasickness, 16-year-old Crown Prince Michael of Rumania arrived back home today from a bout with a storm on the Black Sea.

Michael reached Bucharest at 10:15 a. m. aboard a train from Constanza. This evening he planned to board another train en route to Athens, Greece, where he is to attend a wedding.

The young prince's troubles began when the torpedo boat Regina Maria, aboard which he was heading for Athens, ran into a heavy storm and sprang a leak.

Several hours later the Regina Maria, tossed by furious waves, was forced to send out an SOS that caused grave alarm to King Carol, the Rumanian court and the nation.

A British salvage ship, the King Lear, first reached the Regina Maria, whose engine room was flooded. The King Lear got a tow line to the craft and towed it back to Constanza.

The prince drove straight to the royal palace where he had a dramatic reunion with his father.

Bay State Clubs Seek 3 A. M. Close

The Bay State Clubs' Association, including more than 150 Massachusetts clubs, today planned legislation permitting a 3 a. m. closing hour for clubs.

The action followed a similar program decided on by the newly organized Restaurant Owners' Association, who likewise seek a later legal closing hour. The latter group also wants sanction for music and dancing on Sundays.

Lefty in Nevada, Makes 'Reno Home'

RENO, Nev., Jan. 6 (INS)—Established in a modest hotel, Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, ace hurler for the New York Yankees, was in Reno today "to make Reno my home."

While he would not comment on his recently announced intention to obtain a divorce from Actress June O'Dea, Gomez would not deny he was here for that purpose.

Malden Auditorium Reopens

The Malden Auditorium, popular stock company stand of days agone, reopens its doors on Saturday under the management of the Middlesex Amusement Company. Other theaters under this company's management are the Granada, Strand, Orpheum and the recently acquired Maplewood theater, all in Malden.

The Playhouse, at 167 Pleasant street, Malden, has been completely renovated and redecorated, equipped with 1200 brand-new comfortable seats and Western Electric Wide Range Sound facilities.

Manager P. W. Harrison, formerly with Malden's Orpheum Theater, announces a policy of outstanding hit pictures, continuous daily from 1:30 p. m. until closing.

LOU BREMS, the former vaudevillian and one of the most entertaining raconteurs in Boston, will be the next of the "Tobin campaign entertainment committee" to get a City Hall plum . . . Brems will be in command of city functions . . . Stephen J. Hughes, named as director of the municipal unemployment bureau, has a robust tenor, sang nightly for the Tobin cause and is widely-known in Greater Boston. He is a brother of Bernard Hughes, the financial writer.

Leverett Saltonstall drew a laugh from his table-neighbor, former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, at the "Dutch Treat" dinner in aid of the 1938 Community Fund drive at the Copley-Plaza last night when, in expressing appreciation, Saltonstall referred to "Munitions Local No. 9" . . . He meant "musicians" and corrected himself quickly . . .

Five Sunday issues ago, this by-line appeared over a story that Henry Parkman, Jr., could be corporation counsel if he wished . . . Ten days ago, this space started off by naming Parkman definitely as the city's next corporation counsel. Tuesday it was reported here that his acceptance had been in the hands of a friend of the mayor for three days. Yesterday he was named.

WRONG TIME TO TAKE BOW

When Mayor Mansfield was ushered to his pew at the Plymouth Theater Monday night the audience assembled to view "The Housemaster" received the outgoing mayor with a burst of applause . . . Hope Williams, who starred at the same theater three seasons ago in "All Good Americans," was making an entrance at the same time . . . Miss Williams, puzzled at the applause and not recognizing the Boston former mayor, hesitated for a moment and then responded by bowing several times.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

Her appearance in the "cast" of "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly" has begun to pay dividends quickly for Claire Nevulis who was "Miss Massachusetts, 1936" . . . When scenes were being "shot" last night at the Towne Club, Miss Nevulis answered a request to sing . . . Billy Lossez, who will begin maestro-ing next week at the Cocoanut Grove heard her, and engaged her to sing with his band . . . Tomorrow night Miss Nevulis will sing at the Tech Senior Prom with Jackie Ford and his orchestra.

W. A. Quigley, steward at Santa Anita, and director of racing for Bing Crosby's Del Mar track, is a Belmont lad and a classmate of Austen "Duke" Lake at Exeter . . . Arthur "Skinny" Graham, the Somerville boy who would have been a regular with the Red Sox except for injuries, will team up for life with Genevieve Sullivan of Medford soon . . . Coramine, the dangerous stimulant they've been using on race-horses, was tried out successfully on six-day bike riders ten years ago . . . Joe Dineen, the able reporter who composed "Ward 8" and "Murder in Massachusetts," writes in to suggest a story here about the Boston linotyper O. O. McIntyre praised recently as causing the columnist's cheeks to redden by spotting errors in the McIntyre copy. The linotyper is modest, too. We've been trying to track him down for a week . . .

Dr. George Lynde Gately's reported appointment as city institutions commissioner was "news" to the East Boston medico as late as midnight . . . But friends close to the Mayor tipped City Hall scribes that the appointment will be made . . . Dr. Gately's love for children, and his desire to follow through on the thousands of orphans who come under the care of the city—to see that they are schooled and properly cared for after being turned over to Boston families—prompted the Mayor to consider the physician for the institutions job rather than that of health commissioner . . . There's be a change of health commissioners also.

Ella Logan, at the Metropolitan, sings two of George Geshwin's last songs in "The Goldwyn Follies," due for release in mid-February . . . In "Edna His Wife," the fluttery society dame impersonated by Cornelia Otis Skinner, remarks that no one knows what John Paul Jones did, but that everybody knows what he didn't do, i.e.: give up the ship . . . The State of Maine's active publicity bureau comes to hand with this info . . . Captain John Paul Jones commanded the first man-of-war to fly the Stars and Stripes. It was the Ranger, and was built at Kittery.

Thriller Lead for Gable

Clark to Be Starred In 'Too Hot to Handle'

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6—Clark Gable will never again be idle as long as he was in 1937.

Louella O. Parsons

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will see to that, for believe it or not he was off the screen for nearly a year and that is far too long for a gent as popular as Gable. The moment he finishes "Test Pilot" he will be rushed into "Too Hot to Handle," a newsreel thriller which John Lee Mahin and Lawrence Stallings are now finishing for Larry Weingarten.

Put it down to the Panay bombing influence when the Newsreel boys did such splendid work because "Too Hot To Handle" is evidently suggested by that recent news event. Lawrence Hammond, a Newsreel photographer during the Ethiopian war, has been engaged as technical director and a company is already working in the jungles of South America to obtain shots for a voodoo sequence.

The hottest piece of gossip in months is the rumor that Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin have offered to buy Samuel Goldwyn's interest in United Artists. The Goldwyn-Korda efforts to buy this company from the celebrated trio having failed, the tables are now being turned and Mary, Doug and Charlie will endeavor, so my informant says, to force the sale.

This accomplished, they will combine their distributing organization with one of the important film companies. Columbia is mentioned as that studio.

Mohammed won't go to the mountain, so the mountain is going to Mohammed. In this case, the mountain is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Mohammed is Robert Benchley who is obliged to stay in New York during the theatrical season for the national magazine for which he writes. But so determined is the studio to keep the Benchley "shorts" in production that Jack Chertok, head of the short features department is taking a technical crew to the big town so the humorist can supervise and star in the four pictures he's promised them. First will be "How To Stay Happily Married." Should be good for Hollywood circulation.

A line or two: Stan Laurel had to send the bride of a few days, Illiana, down to Palm Springs to recuperate from all the hectic excitement stirred up by wife No. 2. But here's the topper—when Illiana returns Stan is going to find a secret love nest for her—which is the height of something—having to have a secret hideout for your own wife.

NELSON EDDY'S most serious attachment up to the present is INEZ SEABURY, who even attends his radio rehearsals; the KEN MURRAY-ANDREA LEEDS romance is getting hotter and hotter; JACK BENNY can't make up his mind to let that new race horse of his, BUCK BENNEY, run on account of the cracks from GEORGE BURNS and his other pals.

NORMA SHEARER'S porcelain make-up to match her white wig in "Maria Antoinette" breathtakingly lovely; that cute couple hiking every morning in slacks along the sunset strip is JOHNNY GREEN and his bride, BETTY FURNESS.

Nelson Eddy and Eleanor Powell are the stars of "Rosalie," musical screen hit which has been held over for a second week at both Loew's State and Orpheum.

'Rosalie' Stays at Loew's

If you've missed "Rosalie," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-star musical that broke a 27-year-old record at Loew's Orpheum and has attracted capacity crowds at the same chain's uptown State this past week, don't be distressed. It is being held over a second week at both houses.

Nelson Eddy and Eleanor Powell are the picture's co-stars. The action gravitates from West Point via the Atlantic's airlanes to the mythical kindom of "Romanza." It is a lavish, super-stupendous production with stars, song hits, parade grounds, cadets and gorgeous sets galore.

The glittering supporting cast includes Frank Morgan, as the king of fantastic Romanza, Edna May Oliver as his queen; Boston's dancing-man, Ray Bolger and Ilona Massey, beautiful blonde import from Budapest who is making her American debut as the picture's second lead.

Some of the song hits are "Rosalie," "In The Still Of The Night," "Who Knows," and "To Love Or Not To Love."

Included on the same program are two important short subjects, one an interesting Pete Smith specialty entitled "Romance of Radium," and another M-G-M short, "The Boss Didn't Say Good Morning."

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Ann Marsters' column in the Boston American, brings disturbing news to Sheila. It hints Brad's engagement to Jane Prentiss.

STORM BREWS OVER SHEILA KELLY'S HOME

What Has Gone Before in This Story

BEAUTIFUL young Sheila Kelly of South Boston is a State House stenographer, her job dependent on politics. Her steady "boy friend" is Attorney Jerry O'Donovan of Roxbury, former B. C. football star and leader of an intra-party youth movement which aims at a clean-up of Massachusetts and Boston politics. In shielding her younger sister, Patsy, from an indiscreet "pickup date" Sheila meets Brad Talton, Harvard student, and scion of an old and wealthy Beacon street family.

They are in Liggett's on Tremont street when Sheila catches a glimpse of Greefy Koopman, a drug-addicted gunman in the employ of Big Gus Mornick, head of the Boston rackets and secret puller of political strings in high places. Unknown to Sheila, Mornick is anxious to see some reports on the racket situation she has transcribed for state investigators.

Assigned to shadow her, the unsavory Greefy has previously made the mistake of accosting her when Jerry O'Donovan was in the offing. With a bruised face as a memento of that occasion, Greefy is now being more cautious.

Sheila's alarm is such that Brad Talton insists on accompanying her from the store for protection. Caught in a sudden rainstorm, they take refuge in the Parker House lobby; Sheila accepts Brad's invitation to go to the lounge bar on the roof, where she intends to tell him he is not to see her or Patsy again.

Jerry enters unexpectedly with a friend, and sees her apparently on friendly terms with Brad. After a quarrel, he leaves, and Brad escorts Sheila to the Park Street subway station. Just as she is getting on the train for South Boston, Brad plants an unexpected kiss on her lips.

that there was any harm in Patsy. But she was so gay, so trustful of the happiness of life that there was always the danger she might forget the things she had been taught.

* * *

SHEILA was sure now she'd been right in meeting Brad herself, even though she'd not found him as easy to handle as she'd expected.

She felt humiliated at not having read his intention. And yet she couldn't be deeply angry at him. Her naturally sympathetic heart made allowance for the difference in their view of such things.

Probably, the girls he knew weren't so particular. She knew there were girls who regarded kissing as mere social routine and thought boys were dull if they didn't at least try.

She was glad she'd firmly resisted Brad's suggestion they go dancing. Though she felt pretty sure he'd be a swell dancer. She could tell by the way he carried himself, a good deal like Mike.

With a kind of easy cat-like grace which still wasn't cat-like at all. Hadn't he said something about being on the Harvard boxing team? Maybe that was it. Mike said you could tell a good boxer by watching him walk.

* * *

SOMEHOW he reminded her of Mike in other ways even though they were physical opposites. They had the same way of looking very grown up one minute and not grown up at all the next. That might explain why she couldn't bring herself to stay angry at him over that kiss.

Three Win Awards; Chance for All

Three readers of the Boston Evening American have been rewarded for impromptu appearances in this newspaper's great serial, "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly." Each has received an award of $5.

The Tuesday's editions of the American showed photographs of Sheila and her sister Patsy in the midst of a rush throng on Tremont street. Three pedestrians were selected at random; their heads were circled in the picture.

The three thus designated called at the Boston American, were positively identified and received $5 each.

They were:

Miss Betty Dingwell, 87 Russett Road, West Roxbury.

Frank E. Manning, 8 Sumner park, Dorchester.

Well, he wouldn't get away with it so easily the next time—if she ever saw him again. Meanwhile, she'd thought about him enough—too much, for that matter. She turned to her paper. And even that made her think of Brad. She liked the way the newsboy's eyes had brightened when he saw that bill.

But her approving memory of the incident vanished when, halfway down the Boston American's "Girl About Town" column, she read:

"For matching pairs, there has been nothing this social season to compete with beautiful Jane Prentiss, of the Beverly Prentisses, and Bradford Cabot Talton, of Beacon street and Harvard. If as reported, there is a tacit engagement, the marriage will unite two of Boston's oldest and wealthiest families."

Sheila turned the page angrily.

"And he had the nerve to kiss me!" she thought, her cheeks flaming anew.

* * *

GATHERING clouds darkened the usual bright skies of the Kelly household. For the first time in her nineteen years Sheila saw her mother worried and unsure. Only after her visits to church did Ma Kelly return wearing her normal expression of gay serenity—a serenity that made her ever young, ever happy, ever understanding.

Hers was a complete faith in the ultimate goodness of things. It might be shaken at times, but never for long. Not while there was an unceasing fount so near at which she could replenish it. That was one reason the Barney Kellys had not joined the migration of some other old South Boston families to Dorchester, to West Roxbury, to Jamaica Plain.

Sheila's own heart was none too light. She felt badly about Jerry. When nearly a week passed with no word from him, she wondered if she'd made a mistake in not taking Brad up that evening. Of course Jerry would call and apologize in time. But in the meantime, life was a little dull and that was one thing Brad Talton distinctly wasn't. She hoped Jerry wouldn't sulk too long.

Delphine's arrival with little Timmy brightened the atmosphere momentarily. Sheila's older sister was not too broken up over leaving her house in Jamaica Plain. South Boston was friendly and good, she declared. As for the missing Vince, Delphine retained a strange conviction that he would return both repentant and conquering.

"Vince hasn't got a lick of sense," she said frankly, "but he has got a knack of landing on his feet. And he's crazy about Timmy."

Their domestic split-up, it turned out, was not entirely Vince's fault. Delphine had spent too much money trying to impress her neighbors, and Vince, after running through a small inheritance, had turned to gambling.

"First it was the numbers pool," said Delphine. "Then it was horses. And finally he got to chasing after women. So I just told him I didn't want a man around that was crazy enough to think he could beat bookies and blondes too."

* * *

DELPHINE had rented the Jamaica Plain house furnished, but most of the rent had to go to the mortgage, and her idea was to get a job as soon as she could. Sheila wondered if she realized just how hard they were to get.

Little Timmy probably suffered the most from the shift in his family's fortunes. Ninth street was home to Delphine after all, but all Timmy's young life has been spent elsewhere.

"What's coming off here?" she demanded, sweeping her way through the ring. Most of Timmy's tormentors fled, but a red-haired, eight-year-old, from next door held his ground.

"He's yellow," the red-head declared. "He won't fight. Will he?" He appealed to a comrade.

"What did those little boys mean, Timmy, dear?" she demanded, when she had him inside the door. "You're not afraid of them, are you?"

Timmy shook his head. Now he was freed from public view the tears began to flow.

In disjointed fragments, Sheila got the story. It seemed Timmy had been instructed that "only little roughnecks" fought. Whatever Timmy was going to be, Delphine wasn't going to let him be that. So Timmy had spent the first years of his life in sublime ignorance of the pleasures of a friendly scrap.

Primarily, though, his problem was the problem of any new boy in a strange neighborhood, in any part of a large city.

"Well," said Sheila, "that's news to me. I never knew it was a disgrace for boys to fight. I thought it was natural."

She carried that matter to Delphine and the upshot was that Timmy received a few primary lessons in self-defense from Mickey.

To Timmy's credit let it be stated that he took to the short course in fisticuffs like a duck to water.

* * *

AS a matter of fact it was Mickey, not Delphine, who was the cause of Ma Kelly's sad preoccupation. Or rather Mickey in relation to his father—two stubborn wills contesting.

Mickey had received another offer to turn pro, with a guarantee of more money than he would ever make squirting gasoline into auto tanks.

He wouldn't tell who'd made the offer, lest his father contact some old political friend and stop the deal. And Barney Kelly, for his part, had decided to bring the matter to a showdown.

"The next time you fight in public will be your last while you're living in my house," he declared. "It's not that I'm against fighting in a good cause. But fighting for principle is one thing and fighting for profit's another."

And that was why Ma Kelly sometimes looked tired and frightened. Because she knew her husband was a man of his word and she was afraid her son would make him keep it. So she went to church oftener than usual and prayed longer.

Time was when she'd have done more when she'd have faced Barney Kelly down. But not since the trouble that came on him in the police strike—the beating that had changed the whole course of his life and left him subject to dark, unreasonable moods that were only aggravated by any kind of opposition. Ma Kelly understood that. It was part of the hurt to his body and his pride. But Mickey was too young to understand and, too headstrong, she feared, to endure.

* * *

ONLY Patsy remained sublimely unaffected by the storm hovering over the family. Every school morning she tripped off lightly to South Boston high, and every afternoon she returned full of new laughter and adventures.

She'd been feverishly interested, of course, in Sheila's account of her meeting with Brad. And Sheila, playing fair had told her everything—everything, that is, except the incident in the subway station. She couldn't quite trust Patsy to see that as it happened.

Fate Breaks Girl's Stern Resolution Not To See Brad Talton

"Think of that!" she sighed, rolling her eyes mournfully. "Passing up a chance for such a swell party! And the way you like to dance!"

Sheila answered, shortly:

"I did what was sensible and right. Don't you see how it is, sweet—we just amuse him because we're more natural than his Vincent Club girls. We're a novelty." Then she exhibited the item speculating on Brad's possible engagement to Jane Prentiss.

Patsy found that worth a sniffle.

"I'd take a chance against any of these society dames," she said, wrinkling her small, snub nose scornfully. "Dyah me!" Her fresh, young voice assumed a fatigued nasal whine. "I shawn't be going to the Revee-ay-rah this wintah. So common! Jeeves, remove these awchids, they annoy me. I cawn't fancy what people see in the things. Sheila, those girls aren't so hot."

Sheila shook her head.

"You're making differences where they don't exist, Patsy," she said. "It's just that a girl like Jane would naturally have more in common with Brad. It isn't a question of social distinction or breeding. It's more a matter of money. As far as ancestors go, I'm sure we can trace ours as far back as the Taltons."

"Well," said Patsy, "anyhow I'll bet you've got more yumph than any of them."

It was a new one on Sheila. And even Patsy wasn't sure just how to define it.

"Anyhow," she explained, "you've got it and I've got it too, only I haven't got so much. It's what makes the boys google-eyed. Just plain yumph. And you don't necessarily get it by having ancestors that came over with the sacred codfish."

"I'm not sure I want it," said Sheila gently.

* * *

BUT Brad Talton apparently thought she had something, because he phoned the Kelly home twice within the week, though he obeyed Sheila to the extent of not calling in person. He didn't say how he'd got the number, but Sheila rightly concluded he'd managed it through the State House. Jerry was evidently right about the Taltons still having influence in high places.

On both occasions she politely but resolutely declined to see him. The second time she casually mentioned Jane Prentiss. That seemed to stop him.

Then, finally, she answered the phone, and it was Jerry. Though her heart leaped, she kept her voice cool.

He was full of apologies. Whatever she'd done, it was all right. He was a sap, a lunkhead. He'd never make a break like that again.

"It took you a long time to find it out," said Sheila.

"Listen," he said. "I'm crazy to see you, but I'm all tied up tonight. You know how close it is to election. But I'll call you at the State House first thing tomorrow, sure. And we'll have lunch together. Is that a go?"

Of course it was. Sheila was laughing when she hung up. That was Jerry all over. Not so romantic, but reliable. Yet . . . she found herself wishing he could have dispensed with his political meeting just for that night.

As she turned away from the phone, she had more reason to wish it. Her father was saying:

"Moira, I know the boy's planning to defy me tonight. And it will be the last time."

He went out heavily, closing the door after him.

Sheila was terrified. That could mean only one thing—Mickey was going to fight somewhere. That night . . . Where? . . . She wished Jerry were still on the phone . . . He knew about things like that . . . Wait . . . there was Patsy.

* * *

"Listen, Pat," said Sheila, "you've got to help me. Mickey's fighting some place tonight and Pa knows it. We've . . . we've got to stop him.

"We can't have him leaving home. He's too young and bull-headed and everything. He'll get in trouble. I just know it."

Patsy had gladly tossed away the English composition.

"Tonight?" she said. "Swell." Her eyes sparkled at the prospect of excitement. "Will you square it with Ma? Let's see . . ." She was already stripping off her school sweater and pulling silk stockings from a dresser drawer . . . "Betty Smith's brother does some fighting. He'll know. I'll call her now. What time is it? Gee, that would be terrible, wouldn't it?"

As she saw Patsy's manifest delight, Sheila wondered if she'd been wise. And still, she had to find Mickey.

"It's the Boston Arena," said Patsy, returning from the phone. "On St. Botolph street. We can take the sub. But you'll have to hurry and get dressed. We're late now."

And they were late. So late that the crowds had all gone in, and only a few people lingered on the sidewalk before the big building.

Sheila went hesitatingly to the main admission gate. She could hear the roar inside. Mickey might be in the ring even now.

* * *

"I'M looking for a boxer named Mickey Kelly," she said somewhat breathlessly. "I think he's on the program tonight."

The ticket taker surveyed her appreciatively. He was a man who'd lived a long time and seen plenty.

"Girlie," he said, "there's two dozen palookas trading punches inside there tonight, and half of 'em are named Kelly if you believe their managers. You better beat it down to the dressing rooms. Or wait"—he looked at her again—"no, I don't guess that would do no good neither." He searched his pockets. "Wait a minute—I had a program. I tell you—why don't you wait till the fights are over, and"—

"But I can't wait," said Sheila desperately. "I've got to see him now. I've got—"

There was a sudden change in the ticket taker's manner, then a pleasant, familiar voice saying easily:

"If you're talking about me, I'm right here. Why didn't you tell me before?"

It wasn't Mickey, though. It was Brad Talton. And he was a long way from being alone. He was very much accompanied by a girl leaning on his arm. Back of him, also in evening clothes, was Whit Prentiss, and with Whit a tallish, graceful woman who somehow resembled Brad without looking in the least like him.

So Brad and Sheila meet again! But under different circumstances. For Jane Prentiss is with the son of wealthy Cabot Talton. And Mickey's the chief worry on Sheila's mind. There's a surprise in every line of tomorrow's chapter of this all-Boston story of love, battle and political intrigue, appearing daily in the Boston Evening American.

"I'VE bought 4,000,000 pounds of tobacco at auctions in the past ten years," says Mr. Valentine, independent buyer of Westfield, N. C., "and my bread and butter depends on making the right bids. That's why I have to know tobacco values.

"Now I've smoked Luckies ever since 1918, and the reason is, they suit my taste to a 'T'. Nobody knows better than we tobacco men that Luckies are made of the finest center-leaf tobacco."

Yes—and that isn't all...Luckies' exclusive process, "It's Toasted" takes out certain irritants naturally present in all tobacco—even the finest! The result is that you will find Luckies not only taste good but are easy on your throat.

Surely, independent experts like Mr. Valentine make good judges of cigarettes...Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes combined!

GIRL About TOWN

By MARJORIE McBRIDE

A landlubber might consider that specially-constructed home of Charles W. Sears in the Germantown section of Quincy a bit strange, but Mr. Sears likes it. He's a lover of the sea

Marjorie McBride

He built the house. It overlooks the harbor. A den for his own use practically overhangs the water. There are portholes in place of windows. The place is fitted up like a pilothouse. By turning a ship's wheel he can drop hand painted pictures in front of the portholes to give the illusion he is looking out on nautical scenes.

Tarry ropes lie all about. Mounted fish decorate the walls. By the bunk is a small engine. In the winter, when he grows lonesome for the hum of a marine motor, he touches the thing and away it goes . . . putt-putt.

"I don't operate the engine very much," he confesses, "by special request of Mrs. Sears. She doesn't like engines of any kind."

THIS Is LIFE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I [illegible] that whenever I allow myself to wander [illegible] common nature, [illegible] The [illegible]

Robert E. Rogers

[illegible] I am hazy about [illegible] And as for [illegible] I am pretty [illegible] [illegible] intended to set me right in this business about the seagulls of which I wrote the other day.

"Friend Rogers: I think a partial answer to your thought about the seagulls is something as follows: The gulls along the seashore are shore gulls or mackerel gulls. Mackerel gulls follow the mackerel and are black headed and smaller than shore gulls.

"Sea gulls never come near the shore but keep far out of sight of land. All gulls are cold blooded. They are here in sub-zero weather and in the hottest summer. Think it out."

Why Gulls Fly High in Summer

I [illegible] endeavor to do [illegible] as I say. I am no [illegible] Another [illegible] more [illegible]

In your column of December 29 you asked, why do seagulls fly higher in summer than in winter? Here is why —

"A large portion of a seagull's flying is strictly speaking, gliding. In summer the thermal currents, or up drafts, are more numerous and powerful than in winter. The birds derive their lift from the fact that the thermal current, or deflected wind, where it strikes an obstruction and provides an updraft, carries them up faster than their minimum angle of glide, to maintain flight, carries them down. When their wind elevator stops they glide down in wide circles or whatever way pleases their fancy.

They Shriek in Glee Loafing on a Breeze

"In summer they fly almost as much for the fun of it as for business, that is, in search of food. A seagull mewing, as the sound onomatopoetically might be called, is a sign of joy or fun.

"In winter most northern seagulls suffer from malnutrition, and as it takes much more energy for a bird to achieve flight than for an animal to walk, they cut down on their flying. Their blood temperature is higher than humans, but they do feel the cold on severe days and take trips inland to find a bit of warmth, also for a change of scenery and in the hope of getting more abundant food. Seagulls rank in intelligence with the crow, but do not have as extensive a vocabulary, and while afraid of man, they feel more friendly to man than the crow does."

Mr. Nelson Perkins [illegible] know the [illegible] forward and I shall [illegible] wonder how come when [illegible] birds with my eyes.

This Husband Ruins Her Christmas Joy

Another comment on one of the Christmas columns did not give me any information but confirmed me in my belief that I am not so different from the general run of the human race. Several people wrote me that they were just like me when it came to being difficult to buy Christmas presents for. One lady hailing from Newton, wrote me a long and pitiful tale of her sufferings because her husband's birthday comes just before Christmas. He had lost his watch and she was saving pennies secretly to remedy that defect at Christmas. But lo and behold he came home the day before with a newly purchased watch of his own. Tableau! I would not have it believed that I am any such fiend in human form as that husband who obviously must lie awake o' nights scheming to ruin his wife's Christmas, but I do find that my own little weaknesses are more common than I should have imagined.

But now we're back in harness heading for the mid-years and the boys are once more on the job, a little tired looking and bleary eyed but full of the old spirit, ready once more to go in and win—like Mr. Roosevelt.

'ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY'

CHAPTER 35

"Sir," he began, with a bow to his host, "I have this much to say to you on behalf of my beloved Italy. We have derived some incalculable benefits from the bold and astute rule of our premier, but once more Roman history must record the story of a man of genius who, after years of success, leaped into slippery places and, unused to failure, in a spirit of fierce obstinacy, incurred the great displeasure of a still grateful people.

"Italy now calls for Imperial rule. It pins its faith to the youth of our present Royal Family, whose voice is already being heard in strong dissent to a continuation of our imprudent [illegible]."

"I have to announce at this gathering that King Victor Emmanuel has already signed his abdication [illegible]

[illegible]

"I feel that I am here by courtesy [illegible] for, as you know, the United States long ago gave up the idea of taking any active part in European politics.

"We [illegible] the much—we are [illegible] and where we can help [illegible] the interests [illegible] own people we want to [illegible]

"Peace is the greatest blessing in the world. The vast majority of people have no sympathy for aggressive [illegible]. The only message I have to give you is this:

A PEACE PLAN

"If you bring your magnificent plan to a successful conclusion, if this splendid offer by Great Britain is accepted in the right spirit and carried out, [illegible] the cause of peace will be [illegible]. I am confident that [illegible] present Administration or any future Administration [illegible] the task [illegible] in the formation of the [illegible]"

"The plan which Count Helm, I happen to know, has in mind seems to me to be just, logical and workable. I shall [illegible] upon it but [illegible]. It is this that Germany, Austria, Great Britain and [illegible] each should [illegible] attached to their respective embassies what [illegible] perhaps an observer—a man carefully chosen from among the best of his country, a man of [illegible] intelligence and character, whose duties will not clash with those of the ambassador but who will be able to offer valuable evidence upon any controversy which might arise.

"With these and other safeguards which [illegible] provide an impartial mass of considered evidence, there should never be much difficulty in solving any peace problems that may arise."

[illegible]

"I have [illegible] because my position [illegible] no political complications. There is a strong Royalist party in my country which demands the restoration of the monarchy. They look to me as their head.

"I have accepted that honor. At any time I am called upon I am ready to take up the responsibilities of the throne."

THE BRAVE COURSE

[illegible]

"So far we have left to chance [illegible] representatives who are gathered here should express the sentiments of their respective countries.

"I think that the time has come now when, on behalf of Germany I should speak of this great offer which persuades us to help establish European peace. You all know what that offer is.

"Only a few months ago England expressed her willingness to return to Germany the colonies lost [illegible] during the war [illegible]

"[illegible] however quite rightly [illegible] that we should [illegible] binding and [illegible] pledges [illegible] the [illegible] great war [illegible]

"It was [illegible] that our friend and [illegible] chiefs of the army refused to give him the peace pledges which he, on behalf of Great Britain, sought. To be frank they demanded a return in some form or other of the monarchy.

"Our Leader here took the brave course. He announced himself willing to resign provided this offer of Great Britain was substantiated.

"We will now hear from Sir Edward Curtis, the British ambassador to Germany, and another Englishman—a free lance so far as the government is concerned—the Earl of Matresser."

TWO CONDITIONS

[illegible]

"This offer of my country to restore to Germany her colonies," he said, "was made upon two conditions. One was that Germany maintain the principles of Locarno and undertakes not to further occupy demilitarized towns and lands.

"That condition Germany accepted. The second was that the natives of those war-lost colonies should show no violent antipathy to the change, in other words, do not consider themselves betrayed by Great Britain by reason of this act of restoration.

"To insure themselves against this, the government appointed, therefore, our friend, Lord Matresser, who has been of great service in his missions abroad, to investigate thoroughly this particular point.

"Lord Matresser's report from all the colonies, except one, justify us in confirming our offer; but there is one colony in East Africa, to which we will allude, if you please, as No. 7.

"I have a suggestion to make which will do away with these difficulties, but before I make it, I would propose that Lord Matresser explain the trouble."

MATRESSER SPEAKS

The President bowed to Matresser, who rose and began to speak in a conversational tone.

"This particular colony to which reference has been made and to which my remarks apply," he said, "is marked Number 7 upon the map which the president has before him and which I think you have all inspected.

"There I found trouble. Deputation after deputation from the native chiefsought me out even before I had commenced my informal court of inquiry. They all prayed—Count von Helm will excuse my being perfectly frank—that the present regime might continue, that the colony be not returned to its former owners.

Skin Blemish Can Cause Trouble

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A MOLE is one of the most common disorders of the skin. There are various forms, the majority of these blemishes being of benign and harmless nature.

But it is unwise to accept all of them as being of no more importance than a discoloration or disfiguration of the skin.

Within recent years it has definitely been shown that many a one of these so-called "harmless" skin moles is in reality the forerunner of a condition more serious than a mere blemish.

For this reason it is always well to make sure that pigmented spots of the skin are actually benign moles. Close scrutiny by a doctor is necessary to determine whether any dangerous possibilities are present in the growth.

The round, flat and brownish skin mole is the most prevalent form. This is usually harmless. It rarely, if ever, leads to dangerous changes.

ELEVATED MOLES

Special attention should be given to elevated moles. This is especially important advice if a mole is located in any portion of the body where it is subject to irritation, rubbing and ultimate inflammation. Bear in mind that constant friction and irritation may lead to certain changes in the mole.

If it is subject to constant pressure and irritation, it is best to have it removed by a trifling operation. It is also well to remember that moles that grow steadily in size are dangerous and should be removed. Most surgeons now recommend that any skin mole which suddenly increases in its growth should be removed.

Never pick or fuss with a mole. Avoid the application of any ointment or salve unless it has been prescribed by your doctor. Above all, avoid the removal of a mole unless it is done by one skilled in such work. Faulty removal is as dangerous as neglect.

Cancer of the skin is one of the most harmless of all forms of cancer. It readily responds to treatment if it is applied early. Like all other forms of cancer, it is dangerous if overlooked or neglected.

"Twelfth Day" Is Colorful Feast Celebration

By MARTHA LEE

ARE YOU planning to celebrate Twelfth Day? Today, January 6th, or twelve days after Christmas, has been the occasion for a celebration since the reign of Alfred in England.

It was customary to insert a bean into the cake and then, when the family and friends assembled for the cutting, the person who was served the slice with the bean became the "King of the Bean" for that day and ruler of the revels.

This old custom makes a happy way of doing a little "after the holidays" entertaining and may be the center [illegible] Of course there must be plenty of food to be served besides the cake, and [illegible] the main dish for such an evening [illegible] to feature a pan of baked beans.

Ready prepared baked beans are ideal for this purpose because they are full of flavor, require only heating to be ready to serve and because they are especially good to eat.

There are various styles to choose from as there are baked beans with tomato sauce, without tomato sauce, with pork and without pork. After the decision has been made as to the particular kind to use there is still opportunity to add your own personality in an extra flavor touch.

WOMEN RETIRE TO BALCONY

CHAPTER 497

THERE was an almost hopeless desperation in Lillian's voice as she spoke of her conviction that her husband must have had a "grapevine warning" that some of his old underworld associates were on his trail.

But there was the courage of [illegible] desperation and of her own indomitable spirit, in the hurried directions she gave us when, after I had donned my scarf, coat and gloves, she pronounced all three of us so thoroughly invested with dark clothing that no glimpse of light color could be seen about us.

"Well do!" she said. "They can't possibly see us from the ground. Madge, have you a sharp knife anywhere around?"

I wondered at her request, but made no extraneous comment as I answered her.

"Yes, I have a wicked one which Junior and Roderick found, and which I 'exchanged' for two sensible ones. It's here."

I went to my desk as I spoke, took the huge jackknife from a drawer and held it out to her.

WOMEN ARMED

"No use getting [illegible]" she said. "This is exactly the same as [illegible]"

"I'm not exactly a two-gun moll," she [illegible] that I knew [illegible] that made me sure she knew she needed no subterfuge with me.

"Me do I got me revolver, too?"

"Not this time, Katie," Lillian returned firmly, while a nervous shiver ran over me at the thought of tempestuous, irresponsible Katie with a revolver, or any other deadly weapon in her hand. "Now we may not find anything to do tonight. I pray we do not, but if we [illegible] yours, Katie, will be of as much use as any gun."

SAVED HER LIFE

I knew what was in her mind, the memorable time when Katie's quickness of hand and eye saved my life from a murderous Chinese, supposedly safe from the possibility of mischief by being handcuffed and bound.

But the man had watched his [illegible] a second necessary for the men of the party to reach him and subdue him, I, in all probability should now be numbered among the dead instead of the living.

KATIE IS PACIFIED

"Me, I almost as good as [illegible]" she [illegible]

"We're going now," she said. "Remember! not a word, not a breath that you can help taking. Go straight to the cushions and kneel down with your eyes looking through the railings. Keep the scarves around your faces."

"Shall I [illegible] the door?" I whispered to Lillian as I unlocked the door leading to the balcony.

"Yes," she said, and I knew that [illegible] as I did that we were [illegible] ourselves off from the safety of the house.

A Sense of Order

WATCH out for habits that waste energy. Keeping the muscles too [illegible] as well [illegible] There's no sense in [illegible] women can take care of a house without suffering much weariness. Skin Changes

WHEN a woman ages and her hair turns gray, there are changes in the skin. The texture may seem thinner, take on a transparent appearance.

At that period a woman must think seriously about colors that are most becoming. What was flattering in her young days may not be what she needs. She should avoid black and gray as she would the plague, though dove gray is all right. A bit of rose, mauve, even bright blue may give a youthful touch to her appearance.

Why 18-Year-Old Boy Loves a Woman of 30

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A lady writes me a letter full of tear blots and indignation, asking why her son should have fallen in love with a woman 12 years older and twice divorced. It seems that the youth is 18 years of age and the lady is 30.

But with a beauty parlor on every corner, 30 is no age at all in these days of [illegible] and skin conservation.

A universal riddle—why boys and girls begin, almost always by falling in love with men and women old enough to be their mothers and [illegible]. The answer is that older people are so much more experienced and easier to get along with. [illegible]

[illegible] interested in each other are apt to be sensitive, shy, confused and flustered. They don't even know how to talk or what to talk about.

Each wishes, beyond the power [illegible] tremendous hit with the other. But the very force of this urge [illegible]

Radioland Reflections

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Dialer:

Just a few lines to say I've been thinking about you a lot since New Year's Day, when the radio realm made quite a few changes. No doubt you've noticed.

In fact, being in the thick of all the things which the broadcasters say and do, I'd like to write to you in this fashion from time to time and give you some insight as to how plans are progressing. Naturally I'll be wondering if you are pleased or peeved with this and that setting as you hear it.

Wasn't it strange how "Amos 'n' Andy" started off for their new sponsorship? It's a sure thing th[illegible]

Peace on Earth: Or A Social Night In the Blackjacks

AUSTEN LAKE

I HAVE, IN THE CURRENT MAIL, a belated Christmas card from Mr. Caleb "Gaffer" Trott, the distinguished game-cock breeder and moonshine-maker of Pensacola, Fla., his renews a social relationship which has lasted over the years since the Red Sox did their winter training in that sun-blistered spot.

The last time I encountered Mr Trott, who is a large and knobby man with a distracting glint in his eye and the trick of talking in whispers, was two years ago when he appeared in Boston. He wished to cash a small check for quick spending funds, and since I knew that he numbered honesty among his unique traits, and still operated a prosperous moonshine route among the better citizens of his home town, I led him to a bank.

The occasion when I saw Mr. Trott before that, which is the theme of this opus, was by the light of the silvery moon in a very scarey corner of the blackjack country, about an hour's wheeling from Pensacola. I might add that this is a region very rich in scrub palmetto and turpentine trees where cottonmouth-moccasins crawl in the undergrowth and the people are exceedingly resentful of strangers. It is a tossup which the moonshiners like best, the cottonmouths or the strangers.

* * *

Hob Goblin Country

ON THIS OCCASION I AM MR. TROTT'S invited guest and, as such, under his personal protection. So we bump over the ruts, pine cones and roots in Mr. Trott's motor car, which flapped its fenders like black batwings and gave up bullfrog croaks. For this was the car in which Mr. Trott delivered his stimulents during business hours.

[illegible]

Feathered Quitter

"Heuh's the cock-fightin' main," said Mr. Trott in his caressing whisper, waving a horny hand toward the pit where, on a floor of pine bark enclosed in a low railing of unpeeled saplings, two ragged birds were pirouetting and pivoting with their small, evil heads close to the ground.

[illegible]

"That-un's a runnah," Mr. Trott had observed softly, indicating a speckled cock with tattered tailfeathers. And when, a moment later, the bird wheeled suddenly and hopped over the rail, Mr. Trott turned with a knowing wink.

Murder in Miniature

The crowd nipped from black flasks, wiping their moist mouths with soiled sleeves and splitting into little knots. Their talk was low, habitually tense, and their motions quick and violent—men who lived hunted lives and were born to meager bitterness in a starved land.

Tansy Shepherd, said Mr. Trott, was going to fight his red slugger against Lem Shattuck's black Gordon, adding to stay close lest anybody yank a cutting tool in the heat of inevitable disappointment. Tempers here were set to hair triggers and "cuttings" were common.

Death by Moonlight

THE FIGHT THAT HAD FOLLOWED WAS long and bitter and the crowd noises beside the pit were minor renditions of the mob-sounds heard around ringside during Boston Garden glove fights—low, sobbing "aahs," as the Slugger sent his point home in the breast of the Gordon.

This was to the final death as the skinny chickens wheeled, feinted and stabbed with eager ferocity. Sympathetic moans came from the hard bitten humans who watched with slack lips, gaped with unblinking eyes and squirmed with bodies that leaned as the feathered warriors circled and thrust.

An [illegible] broke from Lem's twisted face as his Gordon slipped and, for a heartbeat, went down in a smother of

It would be extremely doubtful that the directors would open the track at all, since 29 days would not compensate for the risks involved."

Paul Bowser, Boston sports promoter, who described himself as a "substantial" investor, spoke for the petition, as did Dave Egan.

Steele Is Choice At 8 to 5 Odds | Dempsey Picking Lenglet to Win

By JACK CONWAY

FREDDY STEELE is an 8-to-5 betting choice to win over Fred Apostoli in their ten-round bout in the New York Garden tomorrow night It is an overweight match, and as a result Steele's middleweight title will not be at stake . . . When Steele and Apostoli were youngsters on the Coast they clashed in the ring, and the present middleweight king won by a knockout.

Mr. Boston

I saw Apostoli stop Marcel Thil of France at Mike Jacobs' "Carnival of Champions" last September . . . Thil was outpointing Apostoli up to the time he suffered a cut over one of his eyes which later made it necessary for the referee to halt the match . . . Apostoli is rugged and young, but does not possess much boxing class . . . I have never seen Steele box, but Max Waxman, manager of Jack Dempsey, says the Coast boxer pound for pound is the greatest fighter in the world.

Lou Brouillard and Johnny Buckley will be parked against the ring when Steele and Apostoli collide . . . Brouillard would like to meet the winner, and is prepared to sign for an overweight match with Steele at the Boston Garden . . . Brouillard is anxious to clash with Steele before sailing for three bouts in Europe under the promotion of Jeff Dickson

Jack Dempsey dropped in at Lou Stillman's Gym in New York to get a close-up of Andre Lenglet while the latter was training for his bout with Al McCoy which takes place at the Garden on next Monday night . . . Dempsey likes Lenglet's punching power, and is picking the Frenchman to win by a knockout as he did when he clashed with McCoy in Montreal . . . Dempsey was in Montreal at the time of the Lenglet-McCoy go in the Canadian city, and picked Lenglet to stop the New England champion.

[illegible] by the Slugger. The Gordon had dripped blood from its beak as it rose. Its comb hung like a bit of torn flannel

"Pick up yo' bird," suggested Mr. Trott, mercifully. But Lem had ripped out an oath and snarled, "See 'im hit fast." He licked dry lips

Now the Slugger wielded his knives with the same, cold and cautious ferocity that marked Joe Louis as he stalked Jim Braddock in the final moments of his Chicago fight—intent on the kill without exposing itself to a wild slash. And suddenly, inevitably, the Gordon slumped, seemed to sigh and expired. The Slugger reared on his claws and piped a thin, clarion cry of triumph—a shrill voice of mischief in the elfin gloom

So today I have Mr Caleb Trott's belated Christmas card. It is a simple card showing the three wisemen under a guiding star. The legend says, "Peace on earth, good will among men."

Harvard Hardly Ready for McGill

Goldup Future Great, Says Smythe

By BILL GRIMES

LESS THAN A WEEK after returning from the Christmas holidays, Harvard's hockey team must play two International Intercollegiate games in three days.

BILL GRIMES

The Crimson is listed to meet University of Montreal tonight at the Boston Garden, and McGill on Saturday.

Coach Joe Stubbs has a far better than average Harvard squad under his wing this season but it's doubtful if his charges are ready for such an assignment as McGill. For years, Harvard has been under par until along about February. On the other hand, McGill has been at the peak of its form for a month.

In all probability, Coach Joe Stubbs will give his substitutes a real workout tonight against Montreal, which team, on its showing, is not up to the Crimson standard.

Stubbs will hold his regulars for McGill, one of the greatest aggregations ever to wear the red of the Montreal university.

'Tap' Gives Stemming Lesson

Helen Alvarez Gives Exhibition of Stemming

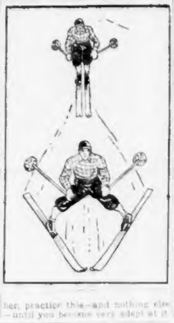
Expert Warns Skiers To Master the Art of Stemming to Insure Own Safety

This is the fourth in a series of nine lessons in "Skiing Made Easy." "Tap" Goodenough, "The Snow Man," who is writing these articles, is one of New England's veteran skiers, having run practically every trail in New Hampshire and Vermont.

Lesson No. 4—Stemming

Skiing under control! This is what every beginner—and many skiers—should learn to do for their own safety. And it takes more skill to traverse a steep slope in a series of "S" turns than it does to run "wide open," or "schus it."

One must first learn to correctly stem or snowplough (see diagram). This is used to reduce speed or stop, and since the stem is the basis for nearly all turns, remember, practice this—and nothing else—until you become very adept at it.



Ankles Straight With Heels, Ski Ends Out, Body in Medium Crouch

Start your stemming lesson on a good grade. Assume a medium crouch, keep heels flat on skis and press heels and ski ends out, bringing tips of skis nearly together in a "V" position. Don't let your tips cross! Keep your ankles straight on the skis in this and all manoeuvers, thus lessening chances of injuring ankles.

Try stemming straight down the slope, time after time. The more you do it, the better you will become at this "stemboggen." You will find you can go down a very steep grade slowly and safely. To learn to ski well, you must learn to stem well!

Lesson No. Five, "Double Stem Turn," will appear on the sport pages of the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Shipstad's 'Top' Feature Act of Ice Follies

When Roy Shipstad joined "Ice Follies" two year ago for its first national tour, the producers of the big skating extravaganza felt that they had signed the greatest living skater. Now with "Ice Follies of 1938" on tour in its third annual production, Roy Shipstad is nationally recognized throughout America as the greatest artist on silver blades. Shipstad is one of the stars of fifty in the cast of "Ice Follies," which will appear at the Boston Garden on January 12-13-14 and 15.

Not yet twenty-six years of age, Shipstad is a slim youthful figure on the ice, whether he is wearing flaming tinselled sequins, his Spanish bolero costume or in any of his other classic numbers.

The world has never seen a skater who performs with greater ease, more perfect rhythm or more complete relaxation. Shipstad goes through the most complicated Paulsen's Loop Jumps, Lutz jumps, his great repertoire of whirls and spins, his superb weaving spread eagle maneuvers with so light a touch, such ease, and such complete poise that he seems to have been born on skates.

His most famous figure is his spinning act, in which he goes from one type of spin into another revolving at such great speed that he becomes a flaming tower of light; his arms, legs, body, head and skates becoming one spectacular gyrating flame. "The Human Top" is the name that the skating world has given him.

Harvard Sixes Go Into Action

Varsity Plays Tonight, Cubs in Afternoon

While the Harvard varsity hockey team is opening its 1938 International Intercollegiate League competition with the game at the Garden tonight with Montreal, the Crimson frosh will endeavor to start on a new win streak at the expense of Cambridge Latin in the afternoon game, also at the Garden.

Not as strong as Harvard freshman sextets of recent years, which up to this season had dropped only three games over 1934-7, Coach Clark Hodder's team has shown definite promise and looks to be much improved by the team of the annual clash with the Eli yearlings.

Harvard '41 have defeated Framingham High, 2—1, Belmont Hill 5—1, and St. Paul's School, 5—3 in a charity match at New York during the Christmas vacation. Cambridge Latin has defeated Newton High, 4—1, tied Rindge Tech, 2—2 and lost to Melrose High, 3—2.

Olympics, Saints Seek 1st Win At Garden

When the Boston Olympics clash with the St. Jacques stickmen from suburban Montreal at the Garden on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 9, both will be shooting for their first victory in the Provincial League.

In three of their four losses to date the Montreals have been within one goal of their opponents, only to drop back with their whole team up the ice banging away for the tieing count. Only Sherbrooke, far in the league lead, was able to really down them, 8 to 3.

Coach Jean Prud will bring here some of the players who worked for him last season when the St. Jacques boys won the Provincial League. The league at that time had a junior rating.

Roland Vallee, a four-year veteran of the Provincial League, will be in the nets for his old coach. It has always been Prud's contention that his young goalie was of senior rating and the youngster's work so far this year proves him to be right.

Green Faces M'Gill Fliers

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 6—The Dartmouth hockey team, winner of eight straight games, will play its second game in three nights when it faces the powerful McGill Redmen on Davis rink here tonight.

McGill, which captured the first title of the newly formed International Intercollegiate Hockey League last winter, is a favorite to repeat its rout of the Big Green accomplished at Montreal last year.

Dartmouth, captained by Dick Lewis of Melrose, Mass., will not be at full strength owing to the loss of Jim Feeley in the Brown game.

N. U. Six Meets Eagles Monday

One move to straighten out the intercollegiate hockey program tangle was made yesterday when the Northeastern-Boston College game, originally scheduled for Jan. 29, was moved ahead to next Monday night at the Arena. The freshman aggregation of the two colleges will meet at the same time.

The changing of the Boston College game will give the Huskies a busy schedule. They played Brown in a wild 9-7 game last night at Providence, and on Saturday Coach Herb Gallagher takes his boys to Middlebury, Vt., for a New England Intercollegiate League game.

After playing the Eagles on Monday, Northeastern will have two more Arena engagements next week, with Colby on Friday noon and Bowdoin on Saturday night.

Managing U. S. Economy Is Problem

Internationalist Consideration Impeding Progress

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

IN THE MIDDLE WEST, Jan. 6—Managing the American economy would be simple if leadership were not dragged into detours by internationalist considerations.

The American standard of living is so much higher than the world average that internationalism inevitably would tend to drag the American level down to the prevailing basis in other countries.

The political fears at Washington early last spring concerning the rise in commodity prices here were doubtless complicated by internationalist considerations.

High prices, especially for raw materials, were perhaps proving a temporary hardship on some of our important foreign customers, especially the British Empire, our biggest customer.

The price rise was in accord with the earlier objective of the Roosevelt administration, which had been formulated at a time when it was concentrating primarily on promoting a balanced internal economy at home.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

For example, in his first inaugural address, President Roosevelt said:

"Our international trade relations, though vastly important, are, in point of time and necessity, secondary to the establishment of a sound national economy."

Again in his message of July 3, 1933 to the London Economic Congress the President said:

"We wish to make this perfectly clear. We are interested in American commodity prices. What is to be the value of the dollar in terms of foreign currencies is not and cannot be our immediate concern . . .

"There is nothing in our policy inimical to the interests of any other country and we are confident that no other country would seek to embarrass us in the attainment of the economic ends required for our economic health."

The whole social program of the New Deal inevitably presupposes a national system of economics, rather than internationalism. Wages and hours legislation and the social trend in the NRA were cost raising in their results, and tended to bring American costs further above the competitive world level.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Yet the internationalists in the administration have gradually gained the upper hand.

Hull's internationalism, for example, gradually forced George N. Peek, former foreign trade adviser to the President, out of public office. There was a feeling that the President had embraced the ideals of Hull, turning away from the economic nationalism of Mr. Peek.

As a result of the shifting of administration opinion, the general price advance early this year proved disturbing to the politicians, who were increasingly impregnated with internationalism.

When chief emphasis is placed on the home economy, there is not much concern about the general level of commodity prices.

Under balanced income relationships, such as Mr. Roosevelt advocated in his campaign speeches at Topeka and Boston in 1932, the principal economic groups at home can keep one another employed through interchanging the products of their hours of labor.

Unless this shift of opinion is clearly understood, the new political attack on high prices cannot be reconciled with the original effort of this same administration to restore the 1926 (high) price level.

Whenever internationalism dominates American economic policy, it is a case of the tail wagging the dog. For even in the peak years, 1927-29 American exports constituted only 6 per cent of the national income.

Sears Roebuck Dec. Sales Off

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP)—Sears Roebuck and Company today reported sales for the 12th period failed to equal those of the similar period in 1936 by 2.5 per cent.

Sales for the 12th period of the 1937 year, Dec. 4 to 31 inclusive, were $58,443,560, a decrease of $1,468,152 from the $59,911,712 for the 12th period of 1936.

Total sales for the first 12 periods of 1937 were $543,239,325, an increase of $47,524,032 from the $495,715,293 reported in 1936. The increase was 9.6 per cent.

RFC Approves B. & O. Loan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, announced the RFC would lend $6,00,000 to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and also provide for $2,223,000 of maturing equipment trust certificates, subject to Interstate Commerce Commission approval.

Haney Sees Alibi In Jackson Blast

Optimistic On 1938 Outlook Despite Deal Demagogues

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—From my first reading of Attorney Jackson's blast against "big business," I have felt increasingly optimistic about 1938, including the business outlook.

At first glance, such false and demagogic attacks as those by Ickes and Jackson would seem very discouraging. When you look behind them, however, you soon see that their true significance is highly encouraging.

* * *

Probably you feel almost instinctively that such violence is a confession of weakness. People don't fly off the handle that way unless something has got under their skin. You feel with Shakespeare that they "do protest too much."

Then you begin to feel that something must lie back of such a concerted outburst of anti-trust bitterness, and you wonder if the thing isn't a scheme to distract attention from the bad business situation. Isn't it an attempt to suggest that some bad big business interests are really responsible? Isn't it an alibi for the New Deal leaders who we thought were planning and controlling?

* * *

And then you come to the heart of the matter, with the realization that this outburst occurs just as all of us are realizing that the New Deal planners have fallen down on the job. Just as recession in business can no longer be laughed off, the President sends Jackson and Ickes out to attack a new evil.

One experiment after another has failed, as all real economists have known they would—gold buying, silver buying, pump priming, NRA, AAA, stock market "stabilization," National Labor Relations Board, and all the rest.

Nothing much has come but the most violent fluctuations and sharpest recessions in history, a huge army of unemployed persons, and a record public debt.

* * *

What next?

That is where the final basis for optimism comes into view, which is that the New Deal administration must now rely upon private enterprise to bring business recovery.

Mr. Roosevelt cannot duck responsibility for the present depression. No amount of talk can make us forget that the New Deal was running the show when the crash came. It had the power, and as Mr. Roosevelt says, responsibility must go with power.

Being thus saddled with responsibility, the administration must do something, and that "something" must be different.

You may think that business recovery will come so soon that maybe the President can stall long enough to avoid making any change. It seems practically certain, however, that this is a real cyclical recession and that no sustained recovery can come soon unless the New Deal changes.

Furthermore, mere pump priming is out. The government's credit is too strained to stand another spree. Anyhow, who has any faith in priming the business pump if business men are not to benefit?

Now what is the only new thing Mr. Roosevelt can try? It is to encourage private enterprise.

Already we see signs of the change. First, he sent Ickes and Jackson out to scare business men. He waved the "big stick" of anti-trust threats. Then he invited business men to help him, and began to talk about the law of supply and demand, rewards for capital, and necessity of curbing organized labor.

* * *

Now as he accepts "business," he can go ahead and get the national income inflated up to 100 billion dollars. With business confidence, inflation will work.

Seaboard Oil Net Close to 1936

While Seaboard Oil Co. undertook its largest development program in 1937, charging such costs, principally for drilling, to current operating expenses, indications are that its net profits for the year will come within close range of 1936, when the equivalent of $2 a share was earned on the 1,244,383 shares of no par capital stock outstanding.

Gross revenues last year probably will top $7,000,000, a new record, or about $1,448,000 larger than 1936.

Lee Rubber's Profit Larger

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Lee Rubber & Tire Corp. reported for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1937, net profit of $596,318, equal to $2.31 a share on the capital stock. This compared with $563,825 or $2.20 a share for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1936.

Company Takes Pride in Men Over Forty

Brooklyn Union Gas Head Discusses Situation

By B. C. FORBES

With one important company, age is no bar to employment.

The recent column giving figures and facts showing that many companies take pride in the length of service of many workers has created widespread notice.

From President Clifford E. Paige of Brooklyn Union Gas Company come interesting figures and illuminating discussion of the whole subject.

The preference of many employers for men under 40, Mr. Paige observes, has brought about a social problem demanding the most serious attention. It has resulted in the embittering experience of middle-age men being told, when seeking employment, that they are too old.

CRY NOT NEW

"To the man over 40 seeking a fresh start," he points out, "the 'too old at 40' cry is not new, but it took a prolonged depression to make of it a social problem of national import. Thoughtful men and women are concerned over the waste involved in slamming the employment door in the face of those who bring experience with their years.

"Strangely enough, it was a benevolent movement which led to all the trouble. The enlightened desire of business to provide for the welfare of employes brought the mathematician on the job.

"He demonstrated that it is more costly to provide welfare benefits for those who enter service in middle age than for those who enter in youth.

"In the arguments advanced, it has been said that older men find it difficult to adapt themselves to new and changing environment. They are charged with being more careless and, therefore, more subject to accidents."

ARGUMENTS NOT TRUE

Mr. Paige finds these arguments are not borne out in his company. Instead, he declares, with maturity come experience and judgment.

NUMBER	YEARS' SERVICE
1	60
7	55 to 59
10	50 to 54
42	45 to 49
51	40 to 44
92	35 to 39
208	30 to 34
400	25 to 29

Bank Clearings Decline 11.1 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Total bank clearings in 22 leading cities for the five-day week ended January 5 were $5,810,966,000, a decline of 11.1 per cent from $6,538,195,000 in the comparable 1937 week, also a five-day week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Clearings for the week rose $818,924,000 from the preceding five-day period, while the 1937 comparative showed a gain of $700,900,000.

Turnover at New York totaled $3,642,254,000, a drop of 12.3 per cent from $4,153,000,000 a year ago. Outside of New York the aggregate was $2,168,712,000, against $2,383,006,000 a year ago or a loss of 9.0 per cent.

The more important declines, compared with a year ago, included: Pittsburgh 23.3 per cent, Richmond 20.1, Omaha 17.2, Boston 13.8, Detroit 12.6, Baltimore 12.6, Philadelphia 12.4 and Atlanta 10.8. Gains were registered in only three centers. Louisville was up 11.8 per cent and New Orleans 2.

Chicago turnover of $345,600,000 was a gain of 1.0 per cent over $342,000,000 last year.

Building Awards 4 P. C. Over 1936

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Engineering construction awards in 1937 amounted to $2,437,623,000, a gain of 4 per cent over 1936, the Engineering News-Record reported today.

Geographically, the Middle Atlantic states, with a volume of $1,058,364,000, were 39 per cent above last year; and the middle west, with $422,723,000, was 2 per cent ahead. Losses ranging from 13 to 23 per cent were reported in other sections.

Private construction awards for the last year aggregated $1,115,866,000, a gain of 48 per cent over last year; while public awards amounted to $1,321,757,000, a decrease of 17 per cent.

William Carter Co.

The William Carter Company declared a dividend of $4 a share on the common stock, payable Jan. 3 to stock of record same date. Regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share was also declared on the preferred stocks, payable March 15 to stock of record March 10.

Stocks Up to 3 Or More Points

Profit Selling Appears and Chips Down Many Top Marks

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—The buying side proved the most attractive in today's stock market and a wide assortment of rails and industrials stepped up fractions to 3 or more points at the best.

There were frequent profit selling interludes, however, and top marks were chipped down in many cases near the fourth hour. Dealings were slow from the start.

Business and political news was still spotty, from a market standpoint, but brokerage quarters seemed to feel the small volume of offerings lately indicated the list was due for at least an intermediate rally.

BONDS, COMMODITIES UP

Aside from the carriers, steels, aircrafts, motors, farm implements, oils, coppers and specialty stocks gave a good account of themselves.

Prominent on the forward tilt most of the day were Sante Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Standard Oil of N. Y., Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, U. S. Rubber, Allis Chalmers, Philip Morris and Climax Molybdenum.

Consolidated Edison and North American were in demand, but most utilities trailed other groups.

The Reconstruction Finance Corp. came to the aid of the rails by agreeing to grant loans to the Baltimore & Ohio, subject to I. C. C. approval, of about $8,000,000. This road's stocks and bonds, weak yesterday, improved substantially.

Steel and aviation issues received support on visions of increased profits in these fields when the planned expansion of national defenses gets under way. Coppers were stimulated by another boost in the export price of the red metal.

Followers of the automotive department maintained their courage despite testimony of President Knudsen of General Motors before the Senate Unemployment Committee that the recent drop in sales was the most severe in the history of his company. He revealed, though, that 1937 net would amount to some $4.48 a common share against $5.35 in the preceding year. Not overlooked was the official's statement that taxes jumped $5,000,000 over 1936.

CURRENT TOPICS

Traders who watch bank clearings for clues to business trends found little to cheer about in the Dun & Bradstreet figures for the week ended Wednesday. It was estimated the total for the 22 cities was off 11.1 per cent from the corresponding 1937 period.

On the other side of the picture was the hopeful announcement of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. that it stands ready to invest $100,000,000 in low rental housing as soon as such investment is authorized by a bill recommended by New York's Governor Lehman.

Woolworth Sales Break All Records

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—F. W. Woolworth Co. announced today its sales for December and 1937 broke all previous monthly and yearly records for volume.

December sales amounted to $47,181,651 against $45,505,958 in 1936, an increase of 3.7 per cent. Sales for the twelve months totaled $304,775,189 against $290,378,407, a gain of 4.9 per cent.

Dividend

Announce New Hudson at $694

DETROIT, Jan. 6 (INS)—Prices of the new Hudson 112, the car which will mark the Hudson Motor Company entry into the low-price field in a move by it to offset the business depression, were announced today.

Fully equipped, the Detroit delivery price, plus local taxes, will be:

Four-passenger Victoria coupe, $740.

Price of convertible brougham model is yet to be announced.

Jap Propaganda On China War Reaches Hub

Pamphlet Parallels U. S. Actions to Nippon Moves

By ROBERT L. GREEN

Claiming a traditional friendship with the United States, Japan, in a publication of propaganda that has been finding its way into this port, asks that Americans "exercise great care and ponder on the position of this country (Japan) in her attempt to localize the Far Eastern situation and thus prevent another worldwide calamity."

The publication attempts to parallel Japan's position in China with the United States entry into the World War in soliciting understanding between the two nations.

"Twenty years ago," reads the booklet in part, "the United States went into the World War to end war. And now, in the year 1937, we are again confronted with a spectacle, not only in Europe, but also in the Far East, which is fraught with tremendous potentialities.

"CAN'T STAND ASIDE"

"With Soviet Russia stretching her tentacles through Outer Mongolia in an effort to draw the 400 millions of China into an orgy of Communism, Japan and the rest of the world cannot remain indifferent . . ."

A sort of half mystery attaches itself to the manner in which this publication, an elaborately-illustrated pamphlet, is being distributed here. Only a few of the pamphlets were brought to light in this port.

"We wish to make it clear, the booklet states in another section, that at the very outset, the forces of Japan have not been sent to China for any aggressive purposes, nor are they there to realize any territorial ambitions or designs.

"The forces have been sent to China to safeguard Japan's legitimate interests—to protect the rights and to secure the safety of our nationals . . ."

CITES EXPEDITION

In still another section the pamphlet cites the 1916 Pershing punitive expedition into Mexico as another United States-Japan policy parallel.

"It is a well known fact that the Nanking government was planning a wanton bombing of not only the Japanese section of Shanghai but also the entire International Settlement at the time when the alliance with Soviet Russia was completed," it goes on. "A hitch, however, developed in the plans, only part of them reaching consummation."

Continual mention of Soviet Russia is made throughout the booklet which charges that Moscow is directly behind China and is supplying arms and military experts to the Chinese openly.

Father Casey Rites Planned In Quincy

Solemn Requiem Mass To Be Celebrated For Pastor

Funeral arrangements for Rev. John J. Casey, for 15 years pastor of the Sacred Heart Church and for 23 years a curate at St. John's Church, Quincy, were completed today.

Fr. Casey passed away at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital after a brief illness.

Born in South Boston, Fr. Casey was educated in St. Lawrence's Academy, in Montreal, and entered St. John's Seminary, Brighton, being ordained in 1898.

His body will lie in state in the main auditorium of the church from 4 until 9 p. m. tomorrow.

A solemn requiem mass will be celebrated by the Very Rev. Michael J. Owens of St. John's church, who will be assisted by Rev. James A. Donnelly, as deacon, and Rev. Frederick J. Mulrey as sub-deacon. The Rev. Daniel C. Riordan of St. Patrick's church, Watertown, will deliver eulogy.

Burial will be in Old Calvary cemetery, West Roxbury.

DR. FRANK SEXTON

Men who in their college days were active as baseball players at Harvard, Brown, Pennsylvania and Michigan will gather at St. Aidens Church, Brookline, tomorrow to pay final tribute to Dr. Frank Sexton, once a baseball coach at the above named colleges.

Dr. Sexton died suddenly at his home Tuesday night and funeral services have been set for ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

He had practiced medicine in North Easton for many years, later coming to Brighton, where he began a practice he held until his death. He is survived by his wife.

BURR A. CHURCH

Funeral services will be held at his late home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will take place in Newton Cemetery.

JOHN MORTON

Funeral services for John Morton, 82, of 13 Merlin street, Dorchester, will be held tomorrow morning at St. Leo's Church, Dorchester.

Born in St. Johns, Newfoundland, of Irish parentage, he came to America in his early youth. He was one of the founders of the United Shoe Machinery Co. and remained with the firm until he retired ten years ago.

He was a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, a charter member of the Boston City Club and a member of the commission for the extended use of the Boston evening schools.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Helen Morton, head of the art department in the Cambridge Latin School.

375-Mile-Drive In Wrong Auto

Back Bay police are today trying to settle the strange case of a Simmons College student who drove the wrong car out of a Philadelphia garage when she returned to school last Monday.

Miss Helen Anita Cliff, 19, who attends Simmons' Prince School of Store Service on Marlboro street, left her car in a Philadelphia garage over Sunday night. Monday morning she claimed what looked like her car and drove to Boston.

The garage owner notified Boston police and requested they ask Miss Cliff to return the machine. She replied:

"It was their mistake. They let me take the wrong car and if they want it back let them come up in my car and get it."

Appeal on Racing Petition Looms

The Legislature today considered appealing to the State Supreme Court for an opinion on the dog and horse racing referendum petition, following a warning from Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook.

Cook notified the Legislature that there are two petitions, worded identically, which have been filed. One was entered by the New England Anti-Gambling Association and the other by William E. Boyd.

Pop Question At High Noon!

Beware of Moonlight, Professor's Advice

FRANKLIN, Ind., Jan. 6 (AP)—Dr. W. G. Mather, Jr., head of the Franklin College sociology department, told students they should not "pop the question or accept a proposal in the moonlight."

"Using one's head is difficult at any time, especially in the matter of choosing a life partner. Love is by nature an emotional matter, and under strong emotional forces it is difficult to think clearly."

Hotel Putnam Fire Routs 75

With no chance to gather their personal belongings, 60 guests and 15 employes were driven to the street when a two-alarm fire broke out in the Hotel Putnam, Huntington avenue, Back Bay, early today.

The second alarm was sounded when the fire raced up an airshaft to the roof and flying sparks endangered the New England Conservatory of Music, directly across the street, and other nearby buildings.

The blaze, which blocked traffic on the avenue for more than an hour, was discovered in the rear of the hotel restaurant by Arthur Davis, night clerk. Damage was estimated at $3000.

NEURITIS

MRS. JENNIE MELNYCHUK, 69 Waldren St., Jamaica Plain, Mass., says:—I had Neuritis and Bursitis for a year. I had been treated by a number of doctors but they did not help me. A friend told me of Dr. Walsh. She said she had been recommended by a patient of Dr. Walsh who had been cured by Dr. Walsh. And so she was treated and cured by Dr. Walsh, too.

I had Dr. Walsh treat me and I feel well now. The use of my hands and shoulders has been restored, thanks to Dr. Walsh. I make this statement that others who suffer as I did may know where to go for a cure. Signed, JENNIE MELNYCHUK.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN
THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1938

+ + Ye shall seek me and find me when ye shall search for me with all your heart.—Jeremiah XXIX., 13. + +

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Henry Quimby, St. John's Church, Lowell. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Lindsay, Brookline Baptist Church.

The Editor Says:

GOVERNOR HURLEY'S address to the joint session of the Massachusetts House and Senate was a good speech, though it lacked the strength that made the Governor's inaugural address notable a year ago.

Rightly, it pointed out that Massachusetts is primarily an industrial and maritime State and urged the development of its seaports, particularly the Port of Boston.

It called attention to the commendable progress that has been made in the liquidation of closed banks, in the settlement of labor disputes and in the reduction of highway accidents.

Rightly too, it demanded new laws to combat crime, favored encouragement of agriculture, a half-billion dollar industry, and opposed the surrender of our water and power rights to the Federal Government in exchange for flood control reservoirs and dams.

But about the highly important subjects of taxation, public welfare and the creation of jobs for the unemployed, the Governor had—

LITTLE TO SAY.

He dismissed taxation with the remark that the members of the Special Recess Commission on Taxation had been engaged for several months in an exhaustive study of the problem and said:

"I shall not anticipate their report."

He outlined briefly the cost of relief, informed his audience that the Special Recess Commission on Taxation was also studying that problem, and concluded:

"I deem it advisable to refrain from making extensive recommendations to the Legislature until the Commission has filed its report."

In two short paragraphs, he praised the State's campaign to attract new industries, yet failed to say whether this work should be continued or how the industries we already have could be retained.

IMPORTANT WORK

—awaits all members of the incoming Legislature, and the fact that the Governor chose to make his address more a review of his stewardship than a guide to future prosperity ought not to cause any Senator or Representative to think he can escape the serious problems that confront Massachusetts.

According to the recent census of the jobless, there are approximately 327,600 men and women idle in this State. They must have PERMANENT work in industry, not doles and charity jobs. That is our BIG problem.

We look to the Federal Government for the abolition of confiscatory taxation and for a departure from the economic nonsense which has put our people in competition with the sweatshop industry of Europe and Asia.

But we cannot spend all our time blaming the Federal Government. We must also put our own house in order.

LIFE BEHIND BARS

—is a fitting punishment for Joseph Pimental, the 24-year-old Cambridge "strong boy," who confessed the slaying of little Chester Harris, brutally murdered a year ago.

Those who are inclined to deplore so severe a penalty for a young man in the very prime of life would do well to recall the crime for which he is being removed from society. The Harris child might have been any child.

Nor should it be forgotten that Pimental served a sentence at Concord Reformatory a few years ago. He had pleaded guilty to attacking a little Somerville girl. But the authorities eventually paroled him. And the Harris boy's murder followed.

We can only hope that there will be no parole this time. Certainly the fact that Pimental was turned loose once and went forth to kill ought to convince our present and future officials that he is no man to be at large.

Everybody, of course, pities his aged mother who collapsed when he was sentenced yesterday and led away to begin his lifelong term. Her suffering was proof anew that this world's grief has an unfortunate way of visiting the innocent, mothers especially.

BEGIN IT TODAY!

—That is our advice to all readers. As you guess, we are referring to "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly," the brilliantly written and excitingly told novel that appears daily in the Boston Evening American.

Hundreds of books and stories have been published about Boston. Yet seldom has there been a true picture of the city as we, its sons and daughters, know it. Usually, authors have given us an assortment of generalities which might apply to every metropolis, New York, Chicago—even London or Paris.

"When a Cabot Loves a Kelly" is a happy exception. IT IS BOSTON, from beginning to end. It was written by Bostonians for Bostonians, as well as for all who are interested in Bostonians.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

THE season's dramatic shocker, "Of Mice and Men," is not doing the turn-away business that the critical raves, following the first night, might indicate. Almost to a man, the reviewers, in dazzling rhetorical nip-ups, hailed it as the opus of the season.

The plot is one of pathological horror, concerning the strange bond between two itinerant ranch workers. One promises a dying relative to take care of a dim-witted pervert who delights in carrying about and talking to a dead mouse that he has squeezed to death.

In the end the degenerate garrotes a tartish maid of the bunk-house, and his mentor, to save him from a posse, puts a bullet through his head. But it is not so much the ghastly theme that repels but the quite unnecessary exploiting of unprintable epithets.

New York is funny that way. Wicked and overly-sophisticated as it is reputed to be, it will shrink more than the cross roads from flagrant licentiousness in theatrical fare. Such plays as "Of Mice and Men" appeal almost solely to the out-of-town trade.

Many regard George Abbott as the most astute producer of the day. He has a flop now and then, but generally his successes are spectacular. A capable actor himself, he is superb in directing. Few in the theater are so little known and self-effacing. Indeed, self-effacement is distinguishing the Rialto lately. There is none with the Ziegfeld and Belasco flair for erupting headlines. Two producers are without press agents or desire to string their names in lights. Still left, of course, is Billy Rose, who does not share in such modesty.

The bounding Elsa Maxwell, at least when on display in the public restaurants, is a study in exuberance. Despite her rather dumpy size, she suggests a humming bird in flitting from table to table. She will not stay put, and one wonders when she eats her food. But adore her, as many do, or just be amused, she is unique in a topsy-turvy world. For years, despite depressions, recessions and market crashes, she has ridden the crest by leading society around by its figurative nose in the enjoyment of childish games. In her solitude, like Puck, she must laugh at what fools these mortals be!

There is a topic for one of David Grayson's gentle essays in the people we see so often in New York that we become quite familiar, but whose names we never know. A fellow at the Grand Central Information Bureau, for instance, has long been a friend. During lulls at his job, we have exchanged minor confidences. I know all about his family and his ambitions without knowing his name or exactly where he lives, which somehow makes our contact more interesting. He believes, I gather, that I have some connection with the station. I suppose there are at least 50 around town whose acquaintance is on the same basis.

New York restaurateurs have had trouble since prohibition repeal weeding out the bad egg waiters left over from the speak-easy era. Quite naturally, most of them acquired a philosophy of get it today for tomorrow we may be closed. They learned many sly gestures in gypping that have had to be uprooted in a day of more leisurely dining and careful check adding. The waiter on his toes today in such places as the Stork Club can be thoroughly honest and make around $80 a week. The calling is attracting a surprising number of college men, who will stay with it until economic adjustments are more pronounced.

Thingumbobs: Will Lengel is now in charge of all of Theodore Dreiser's literary affairs... Steve Hannagan, who put Miami Beach on the map, is now ballyhooing Porto Rico...Major Bowes has a sister who is a talented pianist and poet...Gene Fowler is dramatizing the Associated Press for the movies.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

The unemployment census can hardly be considered a howling success. The information it gives that the total number of jobless is between 7,822,912 and 10,670,000 is so vague it adds little to the general knowledge of the situation.

Director Biggers of the census points out that "the number of people who reported themselves as unemployed should not be confused with the number of people who need financial assistance or relief." So the nation is as much in the dark as ever about the number for whom relief should be provided.

Of the people who reported they are unemployed, the report of Director Biggers shows a little over 2 millions were working for the WPA, NYA, CCC or some other emergency organization. It is proper that they should be classified as unemployed, since their jobs are clearly temporary.

Even though they are indefinite, the census figures certainly make it plain that the policies pursued by the Administration thus far have failed completely to solve the unemployment situation.

Unemployment was the biggest problem confronting President Roosevelt when he first entered the White House. It is still the biggest problem now after nearly five years of experimentation.

It must be plain that an increase in private employment is the only solution of unemployment. But that increase cannot be brought about by baiting business, taxing it out of existence, arbitrarily slashing working hours and compelling employers to increase wage scales whether their business justifies that or not.

It is customary to speak of business as an abstract thing. The fact is that business is people. Men do not engage in business primarily to provide employment for others. Their first thought is to earn a living for themselves and their families. Then they want to make a profit so they can accumulate something over and above their living expenses. It is in expanding their business activities in the hope of making a profit that they employ others to help them.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE tide of bellowing, screeching, whispering, snarling propaganda raging through the world is all coming this way. We don't set up any counterblasts. We don't use the air or the cables or the mails to tell the world what a paradise this is, how happy and contented we are and what a lot of low-down so-and-sos make up the rest of the world.

That's greatly to our credit, of course, and it is also evidence of our solvency and stability. It's a scared or worried man who yaps too much about what a world-beater he is; also, the man who is always casting a brick at someone else.

Tapping the short wave zone, it is startling and a bit shocking to draw from the silent night all this caterwauling, bilge, contention and hate. Communist Russia has freed the "serfs" of capitalism, and invites workers everywhere to rise against the master class.

The German Nazis have for the first time established real human freedom in the world, and Germany is prosperous, proud, triumphant, and is leading the nations of the world in the final conquest of "decadent parliamentarianism."

Resurgent and glorious Italy, defending herself against the offensive war of the savage hordes of Ethiopia, has risen again to the splendors of ancient Rome, and her empire will girdle the world. Similarly, heroic little Japan is repulsing the assaults of monstrous and savage China.

Historians, listing epochs in the growth of human society, list this one as the "age of reason." Just a random radio kibitzer and not a historian begins to wonder if possibly there hasn't been a mistake, and if a revision might not be in order. In all the vast world contention which attended the rise and fall of the Holy Roman Empire there was no gibberish like that which deluges the world today, no such brazen disregard of truth or morality, no such cynical contempt for reason and even faint plausibility.

Italy has at last provoked Britain into an angry counter attack against the radio blasting which the new and cocky Roman empire has been laying down all over Asia. The Italians, for the last two years, have been stepping on British toes, and now Great Britain herself moves into the loud speaker war, to do some blasting on her account. And Britain is no slouch at this propaganda business, when she really gets going.

You also get, in the night hours, adroit and clubby suggestions, perhaps paced to the sound of Big Ben, that it would be a swell idea if the U. S. A. would take care of this little far Eastern fracas.

We really have no vital interest in anything they are snarling about—Arabia, the route to India, the Danzig Corridor, Northern China, Inner Mongolia, the Ukraine or anything else. But we have a sizeable stake here at home, and troubles of our own—as well as opportunities.

It certainly makes one feel like a rugged isolationist to sample that short wave zone in the late hours.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

DEFENDERS of the English and the French in China say that what they got out of China in the shape of real estate has been got by treaties. But they neglect to tell us that these treaties were INVARIABLY FORCED ON CHINA AFTER MILITARY OPERATIONS.

The British Government in 1839 FORCED CHINA TO TRAFFIC IN OPIUM. This led to the "opium war." England won, and in the Treaty of Nanking England FORCED China to cede the Island of Hongkong.

Again, in 1857, England and France took Canton, and their squadrons threatened Tientsin and Pekin. Once again a "treaty" was forced on China in which she was COMPELLED TO LEGALIZE THE TRAFFIC IN OPIUM.

In 1859, the British and French, their hungry mouths still wide open, declared war again on China. They took Tientsin and Pekin, where in the latter city the English deliberately burned the magnificent summer palace. Once again a humiliating treaty was FORCED on China in which England and France bit off more land.

Japan was asleep in those days, but maybe she had an eye open on the technique of the Western powers. She's quick to learn.

Now England and France "thrill with horror" at what Japan is doing. Well, as for England, having made a full meal off of half the earth, she is naturally contented.

Every major country in the world, including our own, has been guilty of land theft. It's the natural law of expansion. But WHY BE HYPOCRITICAL ABOUT IT?

Ever since Darwin published his "Origin of Species" in 1859, a certain school of evolutionists has been trying to make the monkey the ancestor of man.

Man might be a relative of the monkey—probably a remote cousin; or the monkey may be an aborted and degenerate man; but there is not one iota of evidence to prove that "man was once a monkey."

The embryologists have been working overtime to prove the descent of man from the simian. The Carnegie Institution of Washington has just exhibited "a collection of simian embryos showing for the first time the successive stages of development from a one-cell egg to almost full growth."

Because this growth corresponds in many of its features to the growth of the human embryo, the conclusion is jumped at that both monkey and man were originally of the same species.

What distinguishes man from the animal kingdom is a unique principle of mental and spiritual growth. The animal kingdom is either entirely static or progressively degenerate. Man was never a monkey.

Professor Charles E. Merriam, of the University of Chicago, has an inspirational day-to-day calendar on his desk. Once in a while he rips off a leaf with its axiom and sends it to me.

On the leaf for December 9 that he sent me is the following by F. G. Peabody:

"A greater gain to the world than all the growth of scientific knowledge is the growth of the scientific spirit, with its courage and serenity, its disciplined conscience, its intellectual morality, its habitual response to any disclosure of truth."

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.

NOTWITHSTANDING certain disturbing factors, every realist in Washington knows that basically the situation in the country today is so sound that the sun of prosperity will be shining again by mid-summer, if Congress will pull away some of the clouds.

It so happens that on this point Congress must come to a momentous decision. It must decide whether to save the faces of the politicians, or save the country.

Nearly all the ladies and gentlemen of Congress were "back home" during the recess. Nearly all have come to Washington again deeply concerned with the plight of LITTLE BUSINESS in their districts and States.

The sad state of so many constituents, all over the country, is of immediate concern. They want to be let alone, and given a chance to survive. This influence is going to be very strong.

The attacks on business by Secretary Ickes and Mr. Jackson are regarded as a very bad political blunder on the President's part. It is apparent that Mr. Roosevelt is not taking the advice of men whose advice he did take three and four years ago, to his great advantage.

They had talked with the President on the economic situation on the very eve of Jackson's first tirade against business. These men, once so close to the New Deal, did not advise the President to direct the kind of attack on business which was so soon to follow. Moreover, they did not even suspect that Mr. Roosevelt had anything of the sort in his mind.

As though Mr. Roosevelt would thus trifle with the economic happiness of the country. The theory is absurd.

The other assumption is that Mr. Roosevelt read the Ickes and Jackson speeches before they were delivered.

It is certainly not true that the early spokesmen for the New Deal submitted their speeches to the White House in advance.

There is no reason for believing that the White House requires that sort of thing now.

Mr. Roosevelt's own version of what he proposed to do with the minority of bad monopolies would have been sound if standing alone. The political error must be ascribed to Ickes and Jackson.
